Introduction

Shareholders have been vested with various rights including the right to elect directors. However, shareholders are often ill-equipped to exercise effective control over the affairs of companies, and, particularly in companies whose shareholders are widely scattered, the shareholders are, by and large, sleeping and passive partners, and the affairs of such companies are managed to all intents and purposes, by its Board of directors to the exclusion of a predominant majority of shareholders. Such a situation leads to abuse of power by persons in control of the affairs of company. It became, therefore, imperative for the Central Government to assume certain powers to investigate the affairs of the company in appropriate cases particularly where there was reason to believe that the business of the company was being conducted with the intent to defraud its creditors or members or for a fraudulent or unlawful purpose, or in any manner oppressive of any of its members. Chapter XIV contains Sections 206 to 229 of the Companies Act, 2013, deals with the provisions relating to Inspection, Inquiry and Investigation of the affairs of company.

Investigation within the meaning of the relevant provisions of the Act is a form of probe; a deeper probe; into the affairs of a company. It is a fact finding exercise. The main object of investigation is to collect evidence and to see if any illegal acts or offences are disclosed and then decide the action to be taken. The said expression also includes investigation of all its business affairs—profits and losses, assets including goodwill, contracts and transactions, investments and other property interests and control of subsidiary companies too.

Serious Frauds Investigation Office (SFIO)

This need to establish a separate Serious Frauds Investigation Office was first indicated by the Naresh Chandra Committee Report on Corporate Audit and Governance. The committee felt that there was a need to establish “a multi-disciplinary team that not only uncovers the fraud, but is able to direct and supervise prosecutions under various economic legislations through appropriate agencies.” A separate agency is therefore direly needed to take up investigation of serious frauds characterized by complexity in the sense of having inter-departmental and multi-disciplinary ramifications and involving large sums of money. It is on the basis of this background that the Companies Act has made provisions for the setting up of a Serious Frauds Investigation Office which had carved out a niche in successfully investigating the Satyam scam.

Serious Frauds Investigation Office (SFIO) is a multi-disciplinary organization under the Ministry of Corporate Affairs consisting of experts in the field of accounting, forensic auditing, law, information technology, law, capital markets, and taxation concerned with detection and prosecuting or recommending for prosecution white collar frauds. - (i) complexity coupled with inter-departmental and multi-disciplinary ramifications;
- (ii) substantial involvement of public interest to be judged by size in terms of monetary misappropriation or in terms of the number of persons affected;

- (iii) Possibility of investigation leading to contribution to or clear improvement in systems, laws or procedures. Investigations by SFIO should be directed to yield the following results as per the Naresh Chandra Committee :
  - a quick unraveling of the fraud or scam, the persons who committed the offence or were involved in the conspiracy with a view to bring them to justice quickly;
  - maximum recovery of the gains from the fraud and the restoration of such assets or moneys to the rightful owners;
  - identification of weaknesses in law or monitoring and reporting systems because of which the fraud had occurred so as to enable the government to take corrective action.

Establishment of SFIO (Section 211)

The Serious Frauds Investigation Office shall be established by the Central Government with the object of investigating frauds relating to a company. However, the SFIO set up earlier vide Government of India resolution No.45011/16/2003-Admn1 dated 2nd July 2003 shall be deemed to be the Serious Frauds Investigation Office for the purpose of this section.
