A Practical Guide to Shareholders’ Agreement

Rishikesh G. Vyas

This article endeavours to canvas Shareholders’ Agreement (SHA) concentrating on narrating the essential elements in a SHA. Facets like ROFR, ROFO, TAR, DAR, Put & Call Option with milestone judicial pronouncements ranging from 1959 to 2012 with windfall coverage of Legitimacy of Pre Emption Rights in SHA, Legitimacy of Put Option in SHA v. SCRA, Options in equity Instruments v. FDI Policy and SHA v. SEBI SAST, have been briefly explained.

Can a Body Corporate invest in a Partnership Firm?

D K Prahlada Rao

The Companies Bill, 2011 by clause 186, inter alia, provides that no company shall directly or indirectly acquire by way of subscription, purchase or otherwise the securities of any other body corporate exceeding the limits of 60% or 100% of the paid up share capital and free reserves. This provision is identical to the provision in the Act. However, in the Bill, the amount in the securities premium account has been added, in addition to the paid up capital and free reserves for computing the percentage limits mentioned above.

Conducting Board Evaluation

Prof. R Balakrishnan

Board evaluation is a recent concept and few corporates in India are already conducting Board evaluation. This concept came from the five words from the Higgs Report of U.K (2003). This article examines the reasoning for evaluation coupled with what is being evaluated and who would evaluate and the process of evaluation. The evaluation of the performance of non-executive / independent directors will not only enable the directors to focus more on their area of weaknesses but it will also build on their strengths enabling them to add value to the company and thereby to the shareholders in enhancing the value creation.

SAT’s Observations on Directors’ Responsibilities

S. Balakrishnan

The judgement in the matter of Ashok Kumar Mishra v. SEBI has thrown up a number of interesting observation/posers which are: Date of cessation of a M.D as a director; Responsibility of M.D for misleading Press advertisements; Manipulation of share prices through misleading advertisements; and unpardonable delay between institution of a case and the date of judgement. The article carries the writer’s comments on the above posers.

Nominee v. Heir

S. M. Jain

Ostensibly, it looks a bit unpalatable that a nominee, who is a repository of such a big confidence of the depositor, insured person, bank account holder or other property owner, as the case may be, should merely be only “a collector” of the money or the like but jural postulates so indicate all conclusively. Conservative people don’t make assignment and entitlements to a stranger and therefore, ordinarily, a nominee, must have some kinship with the heir but it is not so. This article has surveyed the chronological exposure of this concept and its present status.

Art of Preparing Annual Reports A Global Overview

Sriraman Parthasarathy

Recent developments in corporate financial reporting indicate a greater emphasis on better voluntary disclosures by the companies regarding their performance and state of affairs. The quality and the transparency with which such disclosures are made in the Annual Reports enhance the comfort and the credibility of the Reporting Entity. The expectations of the readers of the Annual Reports have increased over a period of time and professional managements are doing their best to meet those expectations by way of making the Annual Reports more educative and exhaustive.
Understanding Peer Review Methodology with Focus on Efficient Administration of the office of a Practising Company Secretary

R Sridharan & Golki Beswala

With each practical application of the peer review process, the areas of improvement would be discernible and accordingly, the process will gradually get refined. Also, an office of a Practising Company Secretary must have certain established systems, policies and procedures to ensure quality control of the attestation assignments handled by it depending on the size and level of the Practice Unit. Putting in place simple office systems and procedures would not only ensure smooth running of the office but also allow performance of work in an efficient manner bringing fewer frustrations, lower costs, more time and value to the business.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS

1. Securities and Exchange Commission of Pakistan (SECP) issues Draft "Voluntary Guidelines for Corporate Social Responsibility"

Securities and Exchange Commission of Pakistan ("SECP") in order to promote responsible business conduct has introduced the Draft Voluntary Guidelines for Corporate Social Responsibility. These Guidelines primarily aim at encouraging responsible business activities that support community growth for public interest and eliminate practices that harm the public sphere.

The Draft Guidelines are applicable to all public companies that have initiated or intend to initiate corporate social responsibility activities. Further, it is expected that all public companies shall endeavor to adopt working models that complement the recommended guidelines with a focus on fair, transparent and responsible business practices.

Through the said guidelines, the SECP has exerted upon two aspects, i.e., the governance practices and independent assurance. Thus as a primary step, the policy related to the CSR activities is expected to be prominently disclosed by companies on appropriate medium of communication for stakeholders. Thereafter, assurance from an independent external party is required for verification of reported activities.

The guidelines shall be applicable to all public companies and are expected to take effect from July 1, 2012.

The guidelines are open for public comments.

The Draft Voluntary Guidelines for Corporate Social Responsibility can be accessed at: http://www.secp.gov.pk

FEEDBACK & SUGGESTIONS

Dear Professional Colleagues,

No one is so powerful that he can stop the march of time - this is what the phrase ‘time and tide wait for none’ is all about. The dynamic business environment that require the professionals like us to be more dynamic and efficient to meet the growing expectations of businesses has put us in a situation of time deficit. No one has time to wait, every situation demands value added and quick response. It is more so in the case of professionals.

Effective management of time appears to be the only solution to meet this dynamism. As professionals we have to deal with multitude of business issues such as compliances, governance, strategic issues, financial, legal and Human Resource issues. This requires multi tasking and it could only be efficiently done by effective time management. We have to utilize the time optimally and meaningfully. If we manage time optimally we will always have enough time to invest in our professional and technical skills upgradation that in turn help us efficiently discharging our professional responsibilities. It will also help us to seize every little opportunity.

Planning and organisation is prerequisite for Time Management. It requires prioritizing the tasks as all tasks, are not equally important. The best way to achieve an ideal time management level is to learn from past experiences. We need to analyze time sheet data to figure it out, “Why a particular amount of time was consumed for a particular task”. Setting deadline helps in reminding to get the works done on time. And last but most important is to make SMART goals. It is necessary that goals must be Specific, Measurable, Achievable, Realistic and Time bound.

SMART goals help one to focus on target and get the target achieved in a time bound manner.

ICSI Corporate Governance Week

As you are aware the Institute is actively engaged in promoting good corporate governance practices amongst the businesses in India as enumerated in its vision and mission. In furtherance of this cause the Institute has decided to observe "ICSI Corporate Governance Week" from 27th August to 31st August, 2012. During the "ICSI Corporate Governance Week", it is proposed to organize programmes on emerging topics in the areas of corporate governance, corporate social responsibility and sustainability throughout the length and breadth of the country through Regional Councils and Chapters of the Institute.

I invite all of you to extend your full support and cooperation in making the Week a grand success.

Peer Review

You would be pleased to note that a separate webpage containing information about Peer Review has been uploaded on the ICSI website at the link www.icsi.edu/prb. A Peer Review Manual has also been released by the Board to facilitate the Peer Reviewers and the Practice Units. Till date nine (9) Training Programmes for Peer Reviewers have been organised empanelling over 150 peer reviewers throughout the country and more such training programmes are planned to be organized in other regions during June-July-August this year. Through the Random Selection Process, 52 Practice Units were identified in first stage and Peer Reviewers are being appointed for conduct of Peer Review. We have an ambitious plan to have Peer Reviews in about 500 Practice Units in the current year.

C S Benevolent Fund

I wish to emphasize that the Company Secretaries Benevolent Fund has been constituted to extend support to our brethren in times of hardship, distress and other unfortunate events. This being a collective effort, the size of the membership to the fund becomes important when it comes to extending financial support to our members. I wish to emphasize that the larger the membership of the Benevolent Fund, the easier it would be for the Fund to provide adequate financial assistance to the members. I, therefore, call upon those of you who have not become the member of the Fund to be the life members of Company Secretaries Benevolent Fund and extend the umbrella of benevolence to your less fortunate brethren in times of distress.

I also wish to mention here the efforts made by Headquarters, Regional Councils and some of the Chapters in organising CSBF cultural evenings/programmes towards spreading the awareness amongst the members about the CSBF and also to increase its Corpus so that the level of support to the needy families could be substantially enhanced. I request all Regional Councils and Chapters to organise such cultural evenings/programmes to propagate the message of benevolence amongst the fraternity of Company Secretaries.

With kind regards,

Yours sincerely,

New Delhi

INTRODUCTION

Shareholders Agreement can be labelled as a glorified quasi partnership deed, and is essentially a contract between some or all of the shareholders in a company and frequently the company itself wherein typically rights are granted to those shareholders who are party to the agreement that are above and beyond the rights that are inherent in the shares that they own, and is intended to ensure that those shareholders obtain the benefits of additional rights that they bargained for when making their investments. It serves to fill the gaps in areas not covered by the Companies Act or Company Articles and explicitly confirms important commercial terms of agreed arrangements which would not otherwise be captured in a contract between the shareholders.
Vital Clauses

RIGHT OF FIRST REFUSAL (ROFR) = Right of Option to Purchase Shares

ROFR in short and simple terms is the right of a person to take advantage of a transaction before it is made open to other parties and covers almost any sort of asset. In brief, the right of first refusal is similar in concept to a call option. It is a contractual right that gives its holder the option to enter a business transaction with the owner of something, according to specified terms, before the owner is entitled to enter into that transaction with a third party. In shareholders’ agreement the right of first refusal bestows shareholders the opportunity to purchase the shares of another shareholder who wishes to sell his shares to a third party. One of the most important considerations in negotiating a right of ROFR is whether the selling shareholder must first obtain a bona fide offer from a third party before offering the other shareholders the first right of refusal (often referred to as a “hard” right of refusal). The alternative is that the shareholder who wishes to sell his shares makes an offer to the other shareholders and, if such offer is not accepted, may make the same offer to a third party within a prescribed time-frame (often referred to as a “soft” right or a “right of first offer”). The bottom line about ROFR is that they restrict marketability.

RIGHT OF FIRST OFFER (ROFO) = Right of Option to Sell Shares

ROFO(also known as a Right of First Negotiation) is a contractual obligation by the owner of an asset to a rights holder to negotiate the sale of an asset with the rights holder before offering the asset for sale to third parties. If the rights holder is not interested in purchasing the asset or cannot reach an agreement with the seller, the seller has no further obligation to the rights holder and may sell the assets freely. For Illustration - A Car Company Porsche is coming out with a limited edition Car whereby it forms an elite owner’s club wherein membership would be limited to just the top customers - like those who own three or more Porsche models, who would be given right of first refusal on special edition car. ROFO is related to ROFR, but the former is considered to favor the seller while the latter is considered to favor the rights holder. Assets that have a right of first refusal attached to them can be more difficult to sell because potential buyers may not want to go to the trouble of negotiating a deal that must be offered to another party first.

TAG ALONG RIGHTS (TAR) = The Minorities Right

TAR (also known as Piggy Back Rights) is a contractually guaranteed obligation conferring right to minority shareholders to sell their stake in a company if the majority shareholder does so and are used by investors to facilitate their exit from an investment. The tag-along rights further guarantee exactly same terms to the minority shareholder. This protects the minority shareholder from the possibility that a new majority owner will come along and ruin the company or take it in a direction detrimental to the minority shareholder. Thus, the third party, if they wish to purchase the shares, must be prepared to purchase all of the outstanding shares. The benefit to the minority shareholder is that they can avoid being in business with an unwanted new co-owner and also ensures that all shareholders will receive similar buyout offers. A shortcoming of tag along rights is that it may cause long delays in the sale of shares. Inserting such a right in the shareholder agreement has the advantage of making minority shareholders feel more comfortable that they will be able to exit at the same time as a majority shareholder. On the other hand, from the point of view of the exiting shareholder who has found a party to buy its shares, it will be important to secure the agreement of any potential buyer to buy not only its shares but the shares of all other shareholders who wish to exercise these rights. As such, this provision may narrow the universe of potential buyers.

DRAG ALONG RIGHTS (DAR) = The Majorities Right

DAR(also known as a "bring-Along") protects the interests of majority shareholders) by providing that any third party who has agreed to purchase the majority shareholder’s shares is also able to purchase any minority shareholding in the company. The majority shareholder is able to literally drag along the minority shareholder in his share sale. The majority owner doing the dragging must give the minority shareholder the same price, terms, and conditions as any other seller thus preventing majority shareholders from being caught in the situation where a lucrative opportunity is missed due to the potential purchaser’s insistence on acquiring 100% of the shares and the minority...
shareholders' refusal to sell his shares. Drag Along rights are more controversial. A drag along right gives the investing shareholder the right to force the other investor(s) to exit should the investing shareholder exit, once again, usually on the same price and terms. In private equity transactions for investors, drag along rights are usually a sine qua non for any investment. Some private equity investors affectionately refer to their Drag Along rights as their "nuclear option." On the other hand, for many business owners, a drag along right represents a Damocles sword, a threat that they may be forced to sell their business if the investor decides to drag him or her along, usually at a valuation over which he or she has no control. In a nutshell, the negotiation between an owner and investor with respect to drag along rights is a function of the relative bargaining strength of the parties and their negotiating ability. It balances the legitimate desire of an investor to exit from an investment at a time that suits them (minority investments in particular may be extremely difficult to exit without a Drag Along) with the legitimate right of a business owner not to have his or her interest in a business sold against his or her will.

PUT and CALL OPTION = Right to sell & buy

Put and Call options are generic terms to mean right but not an obligation to respectively sell and buy the stocks and they are omnipresent in modern investment agreements. To begin with, an "option" is the right or entitlement, but not an obligation, of a person to buy or sell an asset. Such options are created by contract and essentially represent contractual obligations of transacting parties. A "put option" is the right (but not obligation) of a holder of shares in a company to sell those shares to another person at a pre-determined price otherwise known as "strike price". Now when the option is franchised by the shareholder, the other person being the buyer will be obligated to purchase the shares at the strike price. The adverse of a put option is a "call option", which grants the right (but not the obligation) to a person to acquire shares in a company from an existing shareholder at a strike price. When an option is exercised by the holder thereof, the shareholder being the seller will be obligated to sell the shares to the option holder at the strike price. The rationale assumption of the application of either a put option or a call option is to transfer the relevant shares from the seller to the buyer at the strike price.

Milestone Judicial Pronouncements

1) Gherual Parekh v. Mahadeo Das Maiya
   1959 AIR 781 1959 SCR Supl. (2) 406 (Supreme Court)
   Agreements which are collateral to wagering agreements which are held to be non-enforceable under Section 30 of the Contract Act, are perfectly legal and can be enforced in a court of law.

2) S.P Jain v. Kainga Cables Ltd
   1965 AIR 1535 1965 SCR (2) 720 (Supreme Court)

If the terms of the shareholders agreement are not incorporated in the Articles of Association (AOA) of the Company then in such a case Company is not bound by the terms of such agreement.

3) V.B. Rangaraj v. V.B. Gopalakrishnan
   AIR 1992 SC 453, 1992 73 CompCas 201 SC (Supreme Court)
   Companies Act makes it obvious that AOA is binding on company and shareholders and transfer of shares is regulated by AOA. The only restrictions on transfer of shares are the one contained in AOA and hence restrictions not specified in AOA are neither binding on company nor on the shareholders.

4) Mafatlal Industries Ltd. v. Gujarat Gas Co. Ltd
   1999 97 Comp Cas 301 Guj, (1998) 2 GLR 1436 (Gujrat)
   The distinction between a private and a public company is that in private company provision of restriction of transfer is contained in AOA whereas AOA of public company cannot contain such restrictions. Hence, the ratio of V.B. Rangaraj Case would apply to public companies with a greater force. Shareholders are free to sell the shares to any party and the shareholders agreement not having been incorporated into the AOA cannot be enforced.

5) Rolta India Ltd. v. Venire Industries Ltd.
   2000 (2) BomCR 241, 2000 100 Comp Cas 19 Bom (Bombay)
   An agreement between shareholders of a company would not bind the company, and the shareholders cannot infringe upon a director’s fiduciary rights and duties. Further, shareholders cannot dictate terms to directors, unless they exercise their rights to remove directors under the Act or unless the provisions of the pooling agreement have been incorporated in the articles of association of the company. A pooling agreement cannot be superseded the statutory rights given to the Board of Directors to manage the company, the underlying reason being that the shareholders cannot achieve by pooling agreement that which is prohibited to them, if they are voting individually. The shareholder is dealing with his own property. He is entitled to consider his own interests, without regard to interests of other shareholders. Directors are fiduciaries of the Company it is their duty to do what they consider best in the interests of the Company. They cannot abdicate their independent judgment by entering into pooling agreements.

6) IL and FS Trust Co. Ltd. v. Birla Perucchini Ltd
   2003 (3) BomCR 334, 2004 121 Comp Cas 335 Bom (Bombay)
   The provisions in an agreement between the shareholders of a company cannot be enforced against the company in question (even if the company is a party to such agreement) unless the same provisions have been reflected in the articles of association of the company.
7) M.S. Madhusoodhanan v. Kerala Kaumudi Pvt. Ltd 2003 (6) ALD 1 SC, 2003 117 Comp Cas 19 SC (Supreme Court)
Consensual agreements between shareholders relating to their shares do not impose restriction on transferability of shares and they can be enforced like any other agreement. Not disagreeing with the decision in V.B Rangaraj but distinguishing itself from the facts in that judgment, held that a restriction in relation to identified members on identified shares of a private company did not amount to restriction of transferability of shares per se.

8) Smt. Pushpa Katooch v. Manu Maharani Hotels Ltd 2006 131 Comp Cas 42 Delhi, 121 (2005) DLT 333 (Delhi)
The articles of association of a public limited company shall prevail over any family settlement. The Court noted that even if there was a provision for pre-emptive rights in the articles of association, it would have been ultra vires the provisions of the Act, as no company can provide in the articles of association any matter which offends the specific provision of an Act, namely, sub-section (2) of section 111A of the Act which specifically provides that the shares or debentures and any interest therein of a private company shall be freely transferable.

9) Western Maharashtra Development Corp. Ltd v. Bajaj Auto Limited ARBITRATION PETITION NO.174 OF 2006 (Bombay)
Section 111A of the Companies Act, 1956 mandates that there can be no restriction whatsoever on the transferability of shares in a public company. Consequently, an agreement granting a right of pre-emption in respect of some such shares has been held as patently illegal. The principle of free transferability must be given a broad dimension in order to fulfill the object of the law. Imposing restrictions on the principle of free transferability is a legislative function, simply because the postulate of free transferability was enunciated as a matter of legislative policy when Parliament introduced Section 111A in the Companies Act, 1956. That is a binding precept which governs the discourse on transferability of shares. Section 9 of the Act gives an overriding force and effect to the provisions of the Act notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in the memorandum or articles of the company or in any agreement executed by it. Accordingly, a provision contained in the memorandum, articles or Agreement, to the extent to which it is repugnant to the provisions of the Act, is regarded as void.

10) Messer Holdings Limited v. Shyam Madannmohan Ruia APPEAL NO. 855 of 2003 (Bombay High Court)
A consensual private arrangement between shareholders of a public limited company on a voluntary basis for putting restrictions in share transfer is not violative of Section 111A of the Companies Act 1956 and does not violate the principle of “free transferability of shares”: neither is it a mandatory provision for the company to be a party in such a share transfer agreement, relating to share transfer restrictions nor is it necessary to incorporate share transfer restrictions in the Articles of Association (“AOA”) of the company. The only safeguard to be taken in such a case is that the Articles of Association of the Public Company should not incorporate the pre-emptive rights as agreed between the shareholders. The pre-emptive rights as agreed between shareholders will be legally enforceable and the Company, upon receipt of the transfer deed duly executed by the shareholders or by the shareholder and a third party pursuant to pre-emptive rights shall be bound to register the shares. On the other hand, the pre-emptive rights as agreed in SHA between shareholders shall not be enforceable in the case of shares of a private company unless the Articles of Association of the Company incorporates such pre-emptive rights. The legislative intent of the section is not to curtail the rights of the shareholders to enter into any consensual agreement for transfer of particular shares as has been interpreted in the Bajaj case. Shares are to be treated as any other movable property carrying with it certain rights and obligations that can be transacted upon in any way that the holder wishes to.

The Companies Act recognizes only two types of companies, public and private. There is no third category of company, which retains the characteristics of a private company after becoming a public company. As the Company was a public company since 17 August 1988, the Resolution to change its status to a private company pursuant to an amendment to Section 43A of the Act was not passed confirming its status as a public company. Section 111 of the Act would not apply to the Company since it applied to private companies and would not be relevant to deemed public companies after Section 43A of the Act was amended in 2000. Section 111A of the Act applies to the Company pursuant to which the shares must be freely transferable. Article 57 of the Articles would no longer be applicable after the Company became a public company by virtue of Section 9 of the Act, which stated that the Act overrode the Articles of a company. Further the decision of the Division Bench of the Bombay High Court in Messer Holdings v. S.M. Ruia were distinguished on the ground that it dealt with inter se agreements between the shareholders of a public company and did not deal with restrictions on transfer contained in the Articles of Association of a company. Further, the Ruia judgment overruled the Western Maharashtra judgment only to the extent of inter se agreements between shareholders and the statutory principles contained in the Western Maharashtra judgment did not appear to be affected.

12) Subhkam Ventures (I) (P.) Ltd. v. SEBI 2010] 99 SCL 159 (SAT - Mum.) (Securities Appellate Tribunal)

Control as defined under the Takeover Regulations does not include negative control and protective rights conferred, such as board representation, quorum rights and supermajority rights by themselves are inadequate to constitute "control". 'Control' is a proactive and not a reactive power. And the power by which an acquirer can only prevent a company from doing what the latter wants to do is by itself not a control. In short control means effective control.

13) Vodafone International Holdings B.V v. UOI

Legitimacy of Pre-Emption Rights in Shareholders Agreements

The Supreme Court in V.B. Rangaraj v. V. B. Gopalakrishnan(supra) had held that in the case of private limited Companies restriction on transfer of shares will be valid only if the same are fused in the Articles of Association of the Company.

The Delhi High Court and CLB in Smt. Pushpa Katoh v. Manu Maharani Hotels Ltd. 2006 131 Comp Cas 42 Delhi, 121 (2005) DLT 333 (Delhi) held that in the case of listed shares there cannot be any restrictions namely rights of first refusal because section 111A of the Companies ACT 1956 contemplates free share transferability.

The Bombay High Court in Western Maharashtra Development Corporation v. Bajaj Auto Ltd, (Arbitration Petition No. 174 of 2003) had viewed that the 'restriction on the transferability of shares in private company has to be contrasted with cases involving public companies where the law provides for free transferability and any restrictions on transfer in case of listed shares is bad in law and illegal.

The Division Bench of the Bombay High Court in Messer Holdings Limited v. Shyam Madannomohan Ruia, upheld the earlier interpretation given to the words 'free transferable' used in section 111A in the Western Maharashtra Development Corporation v. Bajaj Auto Ltd case. The Court examined the real intent of section 111A, the motive for its insertion in the Companies Act, and observed:

1) When the shares were in physical form, board of directors used arbitrary powers to reject transfer of shares leading to lot of complaints by the transferees.
2) That situation was partially remedied by insertion of section 22A of the Securities Contract Regulation Act, which laid down only four grounds on which any board could reject transfers.
3) With the introduction of the concept of dematerialized shares through the Depositories Act, 1996, section 22A got deleted and section 111A was introduced in the Companies Act to deal with rectification of register.

The Court's findings on the aforesaid was that it was never intended by the law to take away the right of shareholder to deal with their shares and if the law maker intended to take away the... right of disposal of any shareholder, it would have made an express provision in that regard. Importantly the Court had held that Section 111A is not a law dealing with the right of the shareholders to enter into consensual arrangement by way of pledge, preemption/sale or otherwise inter-se between the shareholders to which the company is not a party.

On that basis it will be sagacious to understand that the expression ‘freely transferable’ in section 111A does not mean that the shareholder cannot enter into consensual arrangement with the third party for dealing in his own shares. The restrictions on share transfer functions only in respect of shares held by specific shareholders. Every shareholder is free to deal in his shares, including the small shareholders who pledge their shares when they raise personal loans in favour of banks/lenders. Since section 111A is not a law dealing with the right of shareholder hence Section 9 also has no application in case of such arrangements. But in farsighted view it must be noted that Supreme Court in V. B. Rangaraj v. V. B. Gopalakrishnan has viewed that Section 82 of the Companies Act governs manner of share transfer and in order to make it enforceable it is necessary to incorporate the restrictive provisions in the Articles. It is recommended to integrate restrictive provisions in the Articles till the Apex Court does not provide its affirmative seal to the judgment given by the Bombay High Court in Messer Holdings Limited v. Shyam Madanmohan Ruia.

Legitimacy Of Put Option In Shareholders Agreement v. Securities Contract (Regulation) Act, 1956

The only way the legality of put option can be questioned to find is whether a contract which provides an option to the Investor to purchase an option to the Investor at a consideration fixed on a date where the performance is to be done on a later date, amounts to a "forward contract" which is prohibited under Securities Contract (Regulation) Act, 1956.

Private Limited Companies

In Dahiben Umed bhai Patel and others v. Norman James Hamilton and others (1983) 85 BOMLR 275, 1985 57 Comp Cas 700 Bom it was held that shares of a private limited company are not marketable securities within the definition of the term marketable security as defined in Section 2(h) of the SCRA. Since shares of private limited company are not freely transferable it does not come under the purview of SCRA as the purpose of the Act was to control securities which were normally dealt on the stock exchange, that is to say Public Limited Companies. Since SCRA has no application to the Private Limited Companies a private company can enter into forward transactions of shares.

Unlisted Public Limited Companies and Listed Public Limited Companies

In Mysore Fruit Products Ltd. and Others v. The Custodian and others (2005) 107 BOMLR 955 it was held that since the shares of Unlisted Companies are "marketable" in nature therefore SCRA will be applicable to unlisted public companies. The only restriction on transfer of shares in a Public Limited Company is the contract for transfer of shares must not be a "forward contract". Hence all the consequences applicable to Listed Public Limited Company will follow in respect of an Unlisted Public Company.

The issue of put/call option came up in the Cairn Vedanta deal where SEBI had directed the parties that pre-emption rights and the put/call option be removed from the share purchase agreement. The enforceability of put and call options on securities of an Indian company under The Securities Contracts (Regulation) Act, 1956 (SCRA) and the notifications issued under that permit only 'spot delivery' contracts in securities transactions outside the exchange. A spot delivery contract is one where the transfer of securities and payment of consideration take place on the same or next day. There is one school of thought that views options as only contingent contracts and they become completed contracts only when the option is exercised (in which case they need to be settled the same day or next day). But there is another school of thought which relies on a judgment of the Bombay High Court in Niskalp Investments and Trading Co. Ltd. v. Hinduja TMT Ltd 2008 143 Comp Cas 204 Bom, 2007 79 SCL 368 Bom where the court refused to accept that a contingent contract is outside the purview of SCRA's proscription. This ambiguity on the enforceability of options in securities only leads to chaos and uncertainty. Thus does it mean that put option is a spot delivery contract as is permissible under SCRA, or is it a forward contract and thus illegal. The Securities Exchange Board of India (SEBI) in three separate cases involving MCX Stock Exchange Limited (April 2010), Vedanta Resources and Cairn Energy (April 2011) and Vulcan Engineers Limited (May 2011) had outlawed clauses in agreements dealing with forward contracts such as buyback agreements and put and call options. In view of the provisions of the Securities Contracts (Regulation) Act, 1956 (SCRA) and notifications issued thereunder, the validity of put and call options on securities of public limited companies entered into outside the stock exchange has been in doubt but in aforesaid three instances SEBI has been making its stand clearer i.e such options are invalid.
Options In Equity Instruments v. FDI Policy

The options controversy started in October 2011 when the DIPP issued the FDI Policy in which it specifically introduced language stating that any equity infusions by foreign parties with "in-built options of any kind" would be treated as ECB and would have to comply with the ECB Regulations. This invited unprecedented opposition from stakeholders and industry players, drew and highlighted the negative impact of this provision leading to DIPP to issue a corrigendum deleting the Clause. Although the RBI has not issued any formal notification explicitly dealing with the legality of put and call options, but the trends wherein companies have received show cause notices from the RBI while attempting to exercise their put and call options shows that RBI lays that there are no options. According to the RBI, such an optional right falls on two counts:

Options are derivative contracts and thus should conform to ECB guidelines:
a) Options are derivative contracts and are not valid and legal under Indian securities law unless they are traded on a recognized Stock Exchange.
b) Investment with options contravenes foreign exchange laws because it is not mandatory for the option holder to exercise the options.
c) Only Securities and Exchange Board of India registered foreign institutional investors and non-resident Indians are eligible to invest in stock-traded derivative contracts.
d) Investments through put and call options as debt rather than equity and hence ECB guidelines have to be complied with.

Shareholders Agreement viz SEBI SAST

Diverging from its earlier ruling in Rhodia S.A. v. SEBI, (Appeal No. 36/2001) SAT’s landmark order in Subhkam Ventures India Private Limited v. SEBI Appeal No 8 of 2008, (Date of Decision 15/01/2010) has removed ambiguity as to whether veto rights constitute ‘control’ under the Takeover Code. SAT reasoning seemed to be premised on the fact that a veto right is only a negative right and does not allow the investor to carry out the actions on its own. The requirement of making an open offer under the Takeover Code is triggered not only on the acquisition of shareholding beyond prescribed thresholds but also pursuant to any acquisition or change in ‘control’ (regardless of acquisition of any shares). While the former is comparatively straightforward, the latter has always raised various uncertainties especially in light of the broad and inclusive definition of ‘control’. Consequently, certain arrangements customary in private equity investments (such as veto rights etc.) have always been open to regulatory scrutiny (i.e., on whether such arrangements constitute ‘control’). The entire discussion on the question as to whether control should be positive or negative, proactive or reactive is unnecessary, as the Takeover Regulations are fairly clear that an ability to ‘control’ the management or policies of the company amounts to control and the nature of such control is of no consequence as the definition of control elaborates that it could be obtained in any manner whatsoever. SAT laid down some general principles as to what constitutes “control” and noteworthy is the distinction being made between proactive power and reactive power. The list is clearly an over-kill and it is very difficult for one to agree with SAT’s view that these rights have been granted solely in the interests of minority protection and good corporate governance. The importance of this ruling is that it sets to rest an issue that has caused a great amount of consternation amongst investors and their advisors. In a sense, the ruling also emboldens the financial investors’ position by a long stretch as it has permitted a great number of supermajority rights that can be included without being in control.

Conclusion

Parties should enter into a shareholders’ agreement fully and carefully defining their rights and obligations. The parties need to understand the issues and the risks limitations inherent in using a company structure and attempt to craft an agreement which fits the particular circumstances. Dealing with these issues effectively in a Shareholders’ Agreement not only has the potential to improve the position for the minority shareholders, but it will assist the majority shareholders in reducing the risk of subsequent disputes and litigation by setting an explicit framework within which the parties can operate. While many shareholders’ agreement do have similar terms, there is really no such thing as a customary agreement and each agreement should be tailored to meet the particular needs and interests of the parties involved in the business.
Can a Body Corporate invest in a Partnership Firm?

Section 372A of the Companies Act, 1956 permits a company to invest in the securities of any other body corporate. A partnership firm not being a body corporate, it is logical that a company cannot invest in a partnership firm.

Investment of funds outside the business of a company is a legitimate activity which a company may undertake in terms of regulatory provisions of company law. Such investment may be trade and non-trade investments. Trade investments are mostly in downstream industries which supplies raw materials or components and investments in such industries will bring about better rapport and preferred terms of supplies. The companies under a 'group' may as well set up an investment company which has as its core business, buying and selling of securities, both on short term and long term basis.

At the corporate level, investment has been used as a potent instrument for expansion and diversification of company's business often resulting in holding-subsidiary company relationship in terms of section 4 of the Companies Act, 1956 (the Act). The strength of this relationship rests on the voting rights which investments confer on the holder thereof. There may be different levels of investment which may not be equal to holding/subsidiary relationship but nonetheless effective in terms of control and influence. Many Indian companies have established a wide network of subsidiaries abroad as a business strategy.

Regulatory Framework for Investment

The Companies Act by section 372A prescribes regulatory framework for inter-corporate loans, acquisition by way of subscription, purchase or otherwise the securities of any other body corporate and the provision of guarantee. There is a combined financial limit for the aforesaid purposes up to 60% of paid up share capital and free reserves or 100% of free reserves of a company, whichever is higher. These limits may be exceeded by a special resolution passed in a general meeting fixing the limit up to which further investment may be made by a company. The percentage limits are relevant from the point of view of cash out-go from the company. Many Indian corporate have used this investment route for the purpose of investing in Joint Ventures or Wholly Owned Subsidiaries in foreign countries. The Foreign Exchange Management Act (FEMA) also provides for an upper limit of 400% net worth of an Indian company for the purpose of investment abroad in Joint Ventures and Wholly Owned Subsidiaries. Foreign entities/non-residents has the facility of investing in companies in India through Foreign Direct Investment Scheme (FDI Scheme).

Nature of Investment

It is clear that what is permitted by section 372A of the Act is the investment in the securities of any other bodies corporate, which by definition includes companies incorporated outside India. The bodies corporate are, in other words, companies incorporated in India and abroad. The question that arises for consideration is whether a body corporate, within the meaning of the Act, can also invest in Partnership Firms. This should be answered in the negative, as section 372A contemplates and permits an Indian company to invest in the securities of any other body corporate. The Partnership Firm, not being a body corporate does not qualify for investment by Indian and foreign companies.

A perusal of the Indian Partnership Act, 1932 will further strengthen the limitation prescribed by section 372A of the Act. A partnership firm is not a legal entity and the partnership is a relation between persons who have agreed to share profits of a business carried by all or any of them acting for all. The relationship of Partnership arises from contract and not by status. More importantly, if a partnership firm incurs loss, it will in effect erode the capital of the partners and if the capital is inadequate, the partners will have to “bring in” additional funds to meet the liabilities of the partnership firm. In a worse situation, the losses of the partnership will have to be met out of personal assets of the partners. This will also extend to companies, if companies are permitted to invest in partnership firms. This will expose the assets of a limited company to unlimited and unascertainable risks.

Clarification On Investment in Partnership Firms

Whether an incorporated company can be a partner in a partnership firm is left unanswered by the Indian Partnership Act, 1932. Curiously, the Companies Act, 1956 is also silent in this regard. There is nothing to suggest in law that a body corporate cannot become a partner in a partnership firm. This arises out of the fact that a company is a legal person in the eye of law and such persons are competent to contract and entitled to be a partner. However, there is one limitation which needs to be recognised that a company or corporation cannot lawfully employ its funds for purposes not authorised by its constitutional documents. Prima facie, it is ultra vires for an incorporated company to enter into partnership with other persons. (Lindley on Partnership, 10th edition).

It is further stated that it is possible to overcome this difficulty
Can a Body Corporate invest in a Partnership Firm?

Whether an incorporated company can be a partner in a partnership firm is left unanswered by the Indian Partnership Act, 1932. Curiously, the Companies Act, 1956 is also silent in this regard. There is nothing to suggest in law that a body corporate cannot become a partner in a partnership firm.

by having special clauses in the Memorandum of Association, permitting a company specifically to make investments in a partnership firm. While a company can legitimately do this, the reverse of it is not possible in the case of a partnership firm as it is not a legal entity in the eye of the law. Apart from the legal perspective, business consideration will not favour investment in partnership firm because of unlimited liability.

Apart from Section 372A, section 292 (1) (d) also provides for investment of surplus funds of a company. The quantum of investment and the nature thereof are to be decided by the Board or a Committee thereof. What is permitted is the short term investment of surplus funds of a company in current assets like Government and trust securities, bonds, commercial paper etc. A current investment by its nature is readily realisable and is intended to be held for not more than one year from the date on which such investment is made as defined in Accounting Standard 13 (AS 13) and it is not comparable to the investment in corporate securities under section 372A.

It appears that the Act has indirectly recognised the legality of a company being or becoming a partner in a partnership firm. A case in point relates to the provision in section 370 (1B) of the Act which provides for grant of loan to a partnership firm having body corporate as a partner. Sections 370 and 372, dealing with inter-corporate loans and investments have been made inapplicable on or after the commencement of the Companies (Amendment) Act, 1999 effective from 31-10-1998 and stands included in section 372A of the Act. Similarly the offices of managing agency and secretaries or treasurers have also been abolished by the Act in the year 1956.

There are, however, references to ‘investment in partnership firms’ under the general instructions for preparation of Balance Sheet, in respect of “non-current investments” under Schedule VI to the Companies Act. Schedule VI has been recently revised. The revised Schedule VI classifies investments as "current investments" and "non-current investments". While investments in equity instruments is classified both under "current" and "non-current" investments, investment in partnership firms stands included in "current" investments. The format of Balance Sheet, whether old or new, is a statutory format and provides for disclosure of investments in partnership firms. If investment in partnership firms cannot be made by the bodies corporate, why then Schedule VI provides for such disclosure and what purpose it serves?

Case Laws

A few cases in relation to the Income Tax Act have been reported which have bearing on an Incorporated Company entering into a Partnership for carrying on certain items of business. In Ganga Metal Refining Co. Pvt. Ltd. v. Commissioner of Income Tax, West Bengal [AIR 1967 Calcutta 429 (U54C92)], three limited companies incorporated under the Act entered into a joint venture as unregistered firm. The High Court of Calcutta held that such a venture is neither a partnership firm under the Partnership Act or the Income Tax Act. It can be regarded as an association of persons under section 3 of the I.T. Act.

It was also observed in the above case that normally and juristically if two companies under the Companies Act enter into a partnership, then each company becomes an agent for the other and agrees to share profits. This will create many problems for the two incorporated companies. They will have to be agents in such a manner which may not be permissible at all by their own charter, articles and memorandum. It will be difficult to apply the very specific rights and obligations between partners in the case of companies as partners in relation to Partnership Act. If the partnership is to be registered with the Registrar of Firms, then the companies as partners will have to obey both the Registrars under the Companies Act and the Partnership Act. The access of each Partner to other Partner’s books of account will make nonsense of the Companies Act provision, as under the latter access to books of accounts are available to the directors of the Companies.
Can a Body Corporate invest in a Partnership Firm?

The Companies Bill, 2011 by clause 186, inter alia, provides that no company shall directly or indirectly acquire by way of subscription, purchase or otherwise the securities of any other body corporate exceeding the limits of 60% or 100% of the paid up share capital and free reserves. This provision is identical to the provision in the Act. However, in the Bill, the amount in the securities premium account has been added, in addition to the paid up capital and free reserves for computing the percentage limits mentioned above.

The above case came up for consideration in the context of one of the companies seeking to set off the loss of partnership business against the income from its usual business. The Court held that the assessee is not entitled to set off the loss against its other income.

Circular by the DCA

The Department of Company Affairs* issued a Circular [Circular No. 1-81 (20-1-81-CL-V dated 14-9-1981) which is relevant to the present discussion. In this Circular, the DCA has answered the question whether a company can enter into a partnership or not in the following words, “that prima facie a company entering into a partnership with some other person or some other company would be ultra vires and will be against the principle that a particular company or an incorporated body cannot lawfully employ funds for purposes not authorised by its constitution which would normally be the memorandum and articles of association. In view of this, while considering applications for registration of firms with bodies corporate as partners under the Indian Partnership Act, 1932, the State Governments should examine the applications before them and find out whether memorandum and articles of association of the applicant incorporated companies contain any special articles, which authorise the incorporated companies to enter into partnerships and the articles can also take care of the possible anomalies which have been pointed out in the Calcutta High Court’s ruling in the case of Ganga Metal Refining Company P. Ltd. v. Income Tax Commissioner, West Bengal, (1968) 38 Comp Cas 117; AIR (1967) Cal 429.

The point for consideration is how can a company incorporate special articles for investment in partnership firms, if the incorporated companies can only make investment as per section 372A of the Act.

Position In Respect Of LLPs

LLPs are differently placed when compared to partners in a partnership firm. Section 3 of LLP Act declares that an LLP is a body corporate formed and incorporated under the LLP Act and is a legal entity separate from that of its partners. Section 7 recognises bodies corporate as being partners in an LLP. Hence, a public company may invest in LLP and vice versa, as both are legal entities. However, investments by an LLP depend upon the Partnership Agreement between the partners. There is no provision in the LLP Act which corresponds to section 372A of the Act, permitting, inter alia, investment in the purchase of shares of any other body corporate.

The Companies Bill, 2011

The Companies Bill, 2011 by clause 186, inter alia, provides that no company shall directly or indirectly acquire by way of subscription, purchase or otherwise the securities of any other body corporate exceeding the limits of 60% or 100% of the paid up share capital and free reserves. This provision is identical to the provision in the Act. However, in the Bill, the amount in the securities premium account has been added, in addition to the paid up capital and free reserves for computing the percentage limits mentioned above.

Conclusion

The prescription in section 372A should be seen in the context of a legal entity investing its funds in another legal entity. Investment activity requires securing the safety of investments made and manner of investment should not impair the investment itself which is a business asset. Business considerations firmly entrenched in the exercise of voting power as an instrument of control outweighs any other considerations. Trade investments bring about synergy of operations and provide a basis for preferential treatment in business transactions. This has contributed to the expansion and diversification of Industries, both nationally and internationally. Investment opportunities in modern times have expanded by leaps and bounds and this calls for protection of investor’s interests.

According to the U K Combined Code, the Board should undertake a formal and rigorous annual evaluation of its own performance and that of its committees and individual directors.

Individual evaluation should aim to show whether each director continues to contribute effectively and to demonstrate commitment to the role (including commitment of time for Board and committee meetings and any other duties). The Chairman should act on the results of the performance evaluation by recognizing the strengths and addressing the weaknesses of the Board and, where appropriate, proposing new members be appointed to the Board or seeking the resignation of directors.

The Board should state in the annual report how performance evaluation of the Board, its committee and its individual directors has been conducted. The non-executive directors, led by the senior independent director, should be responsible for performance evaluation of the Chairman, taking into account the views of executive directors.

Board committee and individual evaluation are now a part of the reporting requirement placed on companies by the Combined Code. Although the responsibility to ensure that this task is undertaken lies with the Chairman, in practice this will probably fall on the company secretary to organize. The Code does not prescribe the way in which an evaluation - whether for Board, committee or individual - should be completed. The requirement is to undertake a formal and rigorous evaluation every year and to state in the annual report how the performance evaluations have been conducted. The Chairman is required to act on the evaluation by recognizing strengths and addressing any weaknesses identified.

Why Evaluation

The failures of several corporates throughout the world...
starting from Enron, WorldCom, Tyco, Qwest, Merck, Mirant, AOL, FredricMac, Sunbeam, Parmalat....... have led the investors, Regulators and the general public at large to question the effective functioning of the Board of any company. The investors have started questioning the collective decision making competency in terms of quality, skills and even the capabilities of individual directors who hold the position in any company.

The question really arises as to why at all evaluation and why the company should undertake an evaluation process? One answer could be this is required to comply with the requirement of the Combined Code of UK, in terms of reporting to shareholders’. Second thing could be to demonstrate best practice in the corporate governance arena. Although, these are valid reasons, they should not be the only reasons for persuading the company to embark on the exercise of Board evaluation process.

The ultimate motivation for a company should be the expectation of improved functionality; this could be improved performance of individual directors through identifying potential weaknesses which can be addressed through additional training where required; or it could be an improvement in the way in which the Board or a committee operates, by a change in administrative procedure.

With such a clear mandate for and wide-ranging implication of overseeing the evaluation process, the profile of a nomination committee should increase. Shareholders will also want to know that the committee can properly discharge its responsibilities unless it can report that it has in place a formal and rigorous annual evaluation of its own performance, that of the Board, the other committees and the individual directors.

What is to be Evaluated?
The next question that arises is what is to be evaluated or apprised, wherever the responsibility ultimately sits. The Higgs Report is vague on this matter and it is left to the individual company to define how it should meet its obligation in this regard.

The Combined Code of UK provides three areas for conducting Board evaluation, namely - (1) Board (2) Committees (3) Individual directors. Perhaps, companies need to find out a solution as to how they should approach these matters and structure their programme for evaluation which could differ from industry to industry and corporate to corporate. To put it in simple terms, the companies are being asked to evaluate the “process” and its “people”.

The Board and committees being collective bodies may like to assess the feedback from an evaluation of their processes on a collective basis. However, for assessing the strength and weaknesses from an individual evaluation, the Chairman needs to get involved and get a personal feedback from each of the directors.

There could be a degree of overlap between these two processes - yet indeed some companies will attempt to undertake an all embracing single evaluation. There is a view that Board and committee evaluation should be separate from the individual director’s evaluation since both the approach to undertaking the exercise and the feedback methods are likely to be different in its approach. The Higgs Guidance on performance evaluation provides checklist of some of the areas that might be evaluated for Board and individuals, which appears at the end of this article as Annexure.

For corporates which are adopting this concept for the first time as a new concept of undertaking evaluation, it is probably easier to start with the less intimidating task of a Board and committee “process” evaluation rather than going into the individual director’s evaluation since tackling the individual evaluation may be much more personal and subjective.

Who would lead the Process of Evaluation?
The Combined Code of UK provides that it is the Chairman’s overall responsibility to ensure that an evaluation of the Board, its committees and individual directors is undertaken on an annual basis. In this process, the Chairman should be assisted by the nomination committee, supported by his Board and company secretary, but in the final analysis, it is the Chairman who will be responsible for identifying the skills base against which the Board is to be judged and it is for the Chairman to set the agenda to ensure that this objective is achieved.

How does the Chairman do it
Before commencing the evaluation process, it is very important for the Chairman to ensure that there is a good degree of "buy in" from all participants - i.e., the members of the Board and committees. The Chairman should obtain general consent for the specific areas of operation / skills to be appraised and a general agreement of the criteria against which these subjects are to be measured. If the evaluation process is undertaken internally, the Chairman perhaps could nominate a lead Board member - a senior non-executive director for that matter - who could be proactively involved - the director could be the director of human resources and / or the company secretary.

On the contrary, if the evaluation process is undertaken through an external source, then, whoever is leading the project would need to demonstrate a good degree of objectivity, understand the objective of the Chairman and help to set an appropriate agenda. Key to the process will be an appreciation of the seniority of the individuals being appraised and an understanding of the hierarchy within the Board; they will need to engender a good degree of trust from all participants to ensure full value is derived from the exercise, which is undertaken.

How to Conduct the Evaluation
None of the regulatory bodies and laws prevalent in any country lay down a system for evaluation as to how to conduct the evaluation. Companies have to evolve a system of their own for evaluation. The Higgs guidance on performance evaluation provides certain guidelines. However, one of the following methods could be adopted for evaluating the performance.

Assessment of the Board / Committee framework
Under this method, a quick assessment could be made with reference to the number of meetings, number of attendances by individual members, the average length of meetings, number of reports received from various parties e.g. Internal audit, number of presentations on special issues of concern and number of reports to the Board from committees and to the management etc.

Productivity measures
Under this method, there is a fairly straight forward examination to ascertain whether the issues that are required by the Board / committee charter are actually discussed - liaison between internal audit and external auditor is part of the objectives and one can determine whether the topic has actually been discussed and whether the Board / committee itself was aware of issues involved and the potential problems. Finally, the appropriate action taken.

Feedback based
Under this method, the issues relating to governance which are being given greater profile, like more in depth scrutiny, internal control systems, development of accounting polices and procedures, valuation of non current assets, related party transaction, consolidated accounts, taxation issues, liability arising out of those and better external and internal coordination could be considered.

Subjective assessments of issues discussed and activities of the Board / Committees
Under this method, one has to be guided by the Higgs guidance and have one to one dialogue with Chairman and the non-executive director and assess the strength and weaknesses and arrive at a subjective assessment.

Measures impact on areas where benefits are perceived to accrue from Board / Committees
Under this method, one has to actually see the end benefit derived following the resolution from the Board / Committees.

Assessing performance against Board / Committee charter
Under this method, the performance against the agreed charter could be compared and the performance is measured.

Evaluating the Chairman
The Combined Code makes it the responsibility of the non-executive directors to undertake a performance evaluation of the Chairman and in this respect the performance of a Chairman will invariably incorporate questions on his leadership and leadership style and the relationships he has with management, shareholders and other stakeholders. In addition, his style of Board management and the role he plays in developing his team should be reviewed.

These evaluation points could as well be applied to the Chairmen of Board Committees. The same observations made concerning subjectivity about the people appraisal can also be applied to the Chairman’s evaluation; the larger the number of contributors to this review, the more objective the evaluation becomes.

Again, the less threatening and more objective approach to this may be to issue a questionnaire to at least the non-executive directors and possibly to the whole Board and the senior independent directors to use these responses as the basis for private discussions with the Chairman.

Indian Regulations on this subject
Clause 49 of the Listing Agreement prescribes for the mechanism for evaluation of non-executive directors. This provision as on date is a non-mandatory one prescribed vide Annexure 1C (7) under its head “Mechanism for evaluating non-executive Board Members”. The clause further reads that the evaluation is done by a peer group comprising entire Board members and such evaluation process be used for the continuance of the terms of appointment of the non-executive director.

Clause 49 v. Uk Combined Code Clause 49 of Listing Agreement talks about the evaluation of only non-executive director while the UK Combined Code talks about the evaluation of the entire Board, spelling out, the evaluation of individual director including committees, the performance of the concerned director / Committees and at least the entire Board which is a larger concept. The non-executive directors, led by the independent directors should be responsible for the evaluation of the Chairman taking into account the views of executive directors on the subject matter as envisaged in the UK Combined Code. It is not out of place to mention here that the requirement for performance evaluation was not in the previous Combined Code and this was introduced only in year 2003 following the Higgs Review suggestions for Good Practice. Higgs Guidance suggested Performance Evaluation Guidance as follows: -

  ● Guidance on performance evaluation
  ● Performance evaluation of the Board
  ● Performance evaluation of the non-executive director

The guidance on performance evaluation of Higgs does not go into detail about how to conduct the evaluation process.
Rather it does not mention what target measures of performance could be used in the process. The Higgs guidance simply made the following suggestions:

a. In the annual report, the Board should state how the evaluation was conducted.

b. The Chairman is responsible for selection of an effective evaluation process and also acting on its outcome.

c. Evaluation process would be objectively done if an external third party was brought to carry out the process.
(This suggestion, indirectly means, there is a risk that the evaluation process would not be objective without the involvement of the assistance of an external agency such as a firm of consultants.)

The revised clause 49 under its heading “IX. Report on Corporate Governance” spells out that there shall be a separate section on Corporate Governance in the annual reports of company. The report should state the detailed compliance report on Corporate Governance. It further says that Non compliance of any mandatory requirement i.e. which is part of the listing agreement with reasons thereof.

The clause further states that the corporate governance report should state the extent to which the non-mandatory requirements have been adopted should be specifically highlighted.
Conclusion
In spite of general acceptance that Board/Committee performance needs to be measured and assessed, very little work has been done in regard to developing robust method of review. The Blue Ribbon Committee, which had made recommendations for audit committee review, came out with ten basic recommendations and the Higgs Guidance suggested only guiding factors in the form of suggested questionnaire. However, recent corporate governance shocks have led to the whole question of corporate governance to be re-examined and as a fall out of this there has been focus on performance measurement of Board / committees in some of the countries.

One can conclude by saying that the review done through "Peer group review mechanism" is one of the scientific ways for appraising the performance of non-executive / independent directors. This process of critical analysis of the performance of non-executive / independent directors will not only enable the directors to focus more on their areas of weaknesses but it will also build on their strengths enabling them to add value to the company and thereby to the shareholders in enhancing the value creation.

ANNEXURE
Performance Evaluation Guidance (Higgs Guidance)

Guidance on performance evaluation
The Code provides that the Board should undertake a formal and rigorous evaluation of its own performance and that of its committees and individual directors. Individual evaluation should aim to show whether each director continues to contribute effectively and to demonstrate commitment to the role (including commitment of time for Board and Committee meetings and on other duties). The Chairman should act on the results of the performance evaluation by recognizing the strengths and addressing the weaknesses of the Board and, where appropriate, proposing new members be appointed at the Board or seeking the resignation of directors. The Board should state in the annual report how such performance evaluation has been conducted.

It is the responsibility of the Chairman to select an effective process and to act on its outcome. The use of external third party to conduct the evaluation will bring objectivity to the process.

The non-executive directors, led by the senior independent director, should be responsible for performance evaluation of the Chairmen, taking into account the views of executive directors. The evaluation process will be used constructively as a mechanism to improve Board effectiveness, maximize strength and tackle weaknesses. The results of Board evaluation should be shared with the board, as a whole while the results of the individual assessments should remain confidential between the Chairman and the non-executive director concerned.

The following are some of the questions that should be considered in a performance evaluation. They are, however, by no means of definitive or exhaustive and companies will wish to tailor the questions to suit their own needs and circumstances.

The response to these questions and others should enable Boards to assess how they are performing and to identify how certain elements of their performance areas might be improved.

Performance evaluation of the Board
- How well has the Board performed against any performance objective that has been set?
- What has been the Board’s contribution to the testing and development strategy?
Conducting Board Evaluation

What has been the Board's contribution to ensuing robust and effective risk management?

Is the composition of the Board and its committees appropriate, with the right mix of knowledge and skills to maximize performance in the light of future strategy? Are inside and outside the Board relationships working effective?

How has the Board responded to any problem or crises that have emerged and could or should these have been foreseen?

Are the matters specifically reserved for the Board the right ones?

How well does the Board communicate with the management team, company employees and others? How effectively does it use mechanism such as the AGM and the annual report?

Is the Board as a whole up to date with latest development in the regulatory environment and the marker?

How effective are the Board's committees (specific questions on the performance of each committee should be included such as, for example, their role, their composition and their interaction with the Board)

The processes that help underpin the Board's effectiveness should also be evaluated. For example:

- Is appropriate, timely information of the right length and quality provided to the Board and its management responsive for clarification or amplification? Does the Board provide helpful feedback to management on its requirements?
- Are sufficient and committee meetings of appropriate length held to enable proper consideration of issues? Is time used effectively?
- Are Board procedures conducive to effective performance and flexible enough to deal with all eventualities?

In addition, there are some specific issues relating to the Chairman which should be included as part of an evaluation of the Board's performance e.g.:

- Is the Chairman demonstrating effective leadership of the Board?
- Are relationships and communication with shareholders well managed?
- Are relationship and communications within the Board constructive?
- Are the processes for setting the agenda working? Do they enable Board members to raise issues and concerns?
- Is the company secretary being used appropriately and to maximum value?

Performance evaluation of the non-executive director

The Chairman and other Board members should consider the following issues and the individual concerned should also be asked to assess themselves. For each non-executive director:

- How well prepared and informed are they for Board meetings and is their meeting attendance satisfactory?
- Do they demonstrate a willingness to devote time and effort to understand the company and its business and a readiness to participate in events outside the Boardroom such as site visits?
- What has been the quality and value of their contribution at Board meetings?
- What has been their contribution to development of strategy and to risk management?
- How successfully have they brought their knowledge and experience to bear in the consideration of strategy?
- How effectively have they probed to test information and assumptions? Where necessary, how resolute are they in maintaining their own views and resisting pressure from others?
- How effectively and proactively have they followed up their area of concern?
- How effective and successful are their relationship with fellow Board members, the company secretary and senior management? Does their performance and behavior engender mutual trust and respect within the Board?
- How actively and successfully do they refresh their knowledge and skills and are they up-to date with
  - the latest developments in areas such as corporate governance framework and financial reporting
  - the industry and market conditions
- How well do they communicate with fellow Board members, senior management and others, for example shareholders? Are they able to present their views convincingly yet diplomatically and do they listen and take on Board the views of others?
The judgement of Securities Appellate Tribunal (SAT) in the matter of Ashok Kumar Mishra v. Securities and Exchange Board of India* makes the following interesting observations/posers:

i) When does a M.D. cease to be a director - the date of actual tendering his resignation, the date of its acceptance (by whom?) or after the third Board meeting he does not attend;

ii) Can the M.D. be held responsible for all the false and misleading advertisements that are issued to the Press, particularly in the light of the term of his appointment. (In this instant case, "to manage the company and control the Board of directors;"

iii) Companies sometimes issue advertisements

*Gist of the Ruling is published in January 2011 issue of Chartered Secretary at page 55.
This provision to bail out directors for long absence from their meetings has been explained in Clause 149 (2) - “the resignation of a director shall take effect from the date on which the notice is received by the company or the date, if any, specified by the directors in the notice, whichever is later”. Incidentally this ‘innovation’ was being recommended by this writer for the past many years, to avoid any dispute as to when a director’s resignation becomes effective - the date of the letter, the effective date mentioned in the letter or the date of the resolution of the Board accepting the resignation.

In the instant case it has to be seen whether the only defence sought by the appellant that he had resigned as M.D. of the Company after 30/6/2002 and that he was not a party to any decision taken by the company with effect from this date. The easiest method to prove this is to find whether the company had advised ROC and the members about this important change. It is surprising that while entering into this controversy on the alleged resignation, SEBI did not ask for copies of the statutory forms supposed to be filed with ROC; the appellant also did not volunteer this information. If it has not been filed, the Company (meaning its Board) could have been hauled up! If filed there would have been no dispute about the date of cessation.

The background for a provision to grant leave of absence can be traced to those days when many of the companies were foreign-owned and a majority of the directors were foreigners. There was no fast air service and long sea voyages to and fro used to take up a significant part of the leave. During this period when Board meetings had to be held, these directors could not be present and to preempt their disqualification due to non-participation, this escape route was provided.

i) Date of Cessation of the office of Director

Section 283 (g) of the Companies Act (the Act) states that “the office of a director shall become vacant when he absents himself from three consecutive meetings of the Board of directors, or from all meetings of the Board for a continuous period of three months, whichever is longer, without obtaining leave of absence from the Board”.

Interestingly Clause 148 (b) of the Companies Bill, now before Parliament, stipulates that “the office of a director shall become vacant, inter-alia, when he absents himself from all meetings of the Board of directors held during a period of 12 months with or without seeking leave of absence from the Board”.

This only to influence the price of its scrip as a result whereof the trading volume increases immensely. The promoters/directors offload their own shares after the advertisements/notices are published in the press; and

iv) The unpardonable delay between the institution of the original case and the date of the judgement of SAT. It is correctly said that justice delayed is justice denied.

The writer gives below his comments on the above observations and posers, seriatim.

i) Date of Cessation of the office of Director

Section 283 (g) of the Companies Act (the Act) states that “the office of a director shall become vacant when he absents himself from three consecutive meetings of the Board of directors, or from all meetings of the Board for a continuous period of three months, whichever is longer, without obtaining leave of absence from the Board”.

Interestingly Clause 148 (b) of the Companies Bill, now before Parliament, stipulates that “the office of a director shall become vacant, inter-alia, when he absents himself from all meetings of the Board of directors held during a period of 12 months with or without seeking leave of absence from the Board”.

ii) Responsibility of the Managing Director vis-a-vis The Board of Directors

This is the second poser. The term of appointment of the Managing Director is said to include “to manage the company and to control the Board of Directors”. This writer has thought and thought and is still at a loss to understand the implication of the term, “to control the Board”. Can he be compared to a Prime Minister in a cabinet system of Government? His influence and in turn his powers as we have seen from recent developments in our country is not unlimited. He has to listen to his party’s dictate, pamper his colleagues but unfortunately he and he alone is responsible for any misfeasance.

SAT has held in the instant case that he has to be held responsible for all misfeasance - in this particular instance for all false and misleading advertisements issued in the Press. If the M.D. was not a party to any decision he thought was not legal, he should have, as rightly pointed out by SAT, come out with a disclaimer, particularly to Stock Exchanges.

It is also pertinent to refer to section 2 (26) of the Act "managing director means a director, who, by virtue of an agreement with the company or of a resolution passed by the company in general meeting or by its Board of directors or, by virtue of its memorandum or articles of association, is entrusted with substantial powers of management (Amendment Act 1960) which would not otherwise be exercisable by him and includes a director occupying the position of a managing director, by whatever name called".

The dictionary meaning of the term 'manage' is "be in charge of, run, supervise, staff, et all".

iii) Misleading Advertisements

The above third poser is very important and topical. In the instant case SAT has rightly held that the company never intended to issue bonus shares though the statutory resolutions were passed by the Board and at the Annual General Meeting. The resolutions were passed and the advertisements issued only to influence the price of the script as a result whereof the trading volumes increased immensely. It is also admitted by the parties appearing before us that the promoters of the company offloaded their shares soon after the advertisements/notifications were published in the press.

Managing director means a director, who, by virtue of an agreement with the company or of a resolution passed by the company in general meeting or by its Board of directors or, by virtue of its memorandum or articles of association, is entrusted with substantial powers of management (Amendment Act 1960) which would not otherwise be exercisable by him and includes a director occupying the position of a managing director, by whatever name called.

There is no escape for the Managing Director from this misdemeanor.

iv) Unpardonable Delay

The last poser and in the writer's opinion (with which he will conclude his article) is the long delay between the issue of bonus shares in June/July 2002 and the date of SAT's order dated 15/11/2010. It is a truism that "justice delayed is justice denied". Much has been said on this unhappy situation. It was recently reported that the backlog in Madras High Court could be brought down considerably if the number of actual judges is equal to the sanctioned quota!

This writer will hold the fourth poser as the most important in that company secretaries in service should not fudge information that they know is not genuine. They should not fall prey to cajolery or threat, but should be true to their profession and to ICSI by sticking to the correct stand. This writer remembers an instance in his professional career that though he questioned the correctness of an advertisement supposed to go under his signature, the directors went ahead, even showing that this had been signed by him. For him there was no other honourable alternative but to resign, though in the process he had to bear considerable pecuniary loss!
The law as it is, the law as laid down and the law as it ought to be are the three situations which need be comprehended, segregated and delineated for correctly understanding the concept of Nominee and Heir and their respective status. The "Nominee" is required to be there under several statutes viz. Insurance Act 1938, Employees Provident Fund (MP) Act 1952, Banking Regulations Act 1949 and other Debt, Financial and Monetary laws including Government Saving Certificates Act 1959 etc. and very often he is not heir apparent. Our Supreme Court usually plays a role of crucial differentiator when the meanings of two words is ostensibly identical and overlap each other.

For quite some time there crept in an erroneous conception holding ground that a nominee under Section 39 of the Insurance Act 1938 got an absolute right to the amount due under a Life Insurance Policy on the death of the assured and that the language of Section 39 looked like altering the course of succession law in the given circumstances of a particular case. This view was more or less propounded by the decisions of Allahabad High Court in Kesaridevi v. Dharma Devi AIR 1962 All.355 and the two decisions of Delhi High Court in S.Fauza Singh v. Kuldeep Singh AIR 1978 Delhi 276 and Mrs. Uma Sehgal v. Dwarka Das Sehgal AIR 1982 Del. 36 etc. Apparently this view lacked strategic thinking and critical analysis of the legal position and it was difficult to swallow the salt of these decisions.

Then there was a contrary view as well that the nominee under Section 39 of the Insurance Act 1938 was nothing more than an agent to receive the money due under a Life Insurance Policy and that the money remained the property of the assured during his lifetime and on his death formed part of his estate subject to the law of succession applicable to him. This view was expressed in the cases of Rabailav Dhandharia v. Gangadhar Nath Mall. AIR 1956 Cal 275, Life Insurance Corporation of India v. United Bank of India Ltd. AIR 1970 Cal. 513, D. Mohan navelu Mudalir v. Indian Insurance & Banking Corporation Ltd. AIR 1957 Mad 115, Sarojini Amma v. Neelkanth Pillai AIR 1961 Ker. 126 and Atma Ram Mohanlal Panchalv. Gunvanti Ben AIR 1977 Guj. 134. It could therefore be observed that most of the High Courts took a view that a "nominee" is only an agent to receive the money. However, as referred hereinabove the Allahabad High Court in Kesari Devi v. Dharmesh Devi and the Delhi High Court in Fauja Singh v. Kuldip and Uma Sahgal v. Dwarak Das Sahgal took a different view but this anomalous position was resolved by the Supreme Court in the case of Sarbati Devi v. Usha Devi (1984) 1 SCC 424. In this Sarbati Devi's case the Supreme Court referred to the full bench decision of Allahabad High Court in Raja Ram v. Mata Prasad AIR 1972 All. 167 and observed that Allahabad High Court itself did not take into consideration the ratio decidendi in Raja Ram's case while dealing with the case of Kesari Devi. The Apex court was of the view that Raja Ram's case correctly interpreted Section 39 of the Insurance Act and that this case must have set at rest the doubts that were created by Kesari Devi's case about the true import of Section 39 of the Act.

We now therefore have three cases of the Apex Court that is the case of Sarbati Devi as referred above, Vishin N. Khanchandani & another v. Vidya Lachmandas Khanchandani & anr. (2006) 6 SCC 724 and Ramchandra Talwar & another v. Devendra Kumar Talwar & others (2010) 10 SCC 671. These decisions are more or less identical so far as the proposition that a nominee would only be an agent to collect the money and that no substantive right would vest in him that money would be able to collect. The case of Vishin N. Khanchandani very elaborately discussed the pros and cons of this proposition. Commenting on the judgement of Delhi High Court in Uma Sahgal's case the court observed that the Delhi High Court concluded that the nominee had no right in the lifetime of the assured to the amount payable under the policy and that this right would sprout up only on the death of the assured. However, the Delhi High Court having reached to this conclusion did not proceed to examine the possibility of an existence of a conflict between the law of succession and the right of the nominee under Section 39 of the Insurance Act. The Delhi High Court did not say anything as to which of the two would prevail in the event of the conflict. The High Court erroneously equated a nominee to the heirs and legatees of the assured and proceeded to hold that the nominee succeeded to the estate with "all "plus" and "minus" points". The Delhi High Court did not properly appreciate the two decisions of Madras High Court of Karuppa Gounder and Mundkar's case.

In the case of Ram Chandra Talwar the Supreme Court very elaborately and pointedly referred to Sub-section 2 of Section 45-ZA of the Banking Regulation Act, 1949. In this Section it is mentioned that in respect of deposits where a nominee made in the prescribed manner purports to confer on any person the right to receive the amount of deposit from the banking company, the nominee shall, on the death of the sole depositor or, as the case may be, on the death of all the depositors, became entitled to all the rights of sole depositor or as the case may be, of the depositors, in relation to such deposit to the exclusion of all other persons, unless the nomination is varied or cancelled in the prescribed manner. On this non obstante provision a dubious logic was advanced and it was contended that it excluded all persons including legal heirs of the deceased depositor to claim any right over the subject amount but Supreme Court conceived such a submission as quite fallacious being based on a complete misconception and held that this provision merely put the nominee in the shoes of the depositor after his death and clothed him with the exclusive right to receive the money lying in the account. It gave him all the rights of the depositor so far the depositor's amount was concerned, but the court observed that by no stretch of imagination it made the nominee the owner of the money lying in the account. Imperceptibly the court felt that in the event of apparent
The Apex Court has by now and by a series of decisions demolished the old judicial distortions attached to the concept of nominee by according a practical and functional approach. The exponents of the present days jurisprudence refuse to take a limited version of justice which is dangerously narrow and try to look at a concept without any passion, prejudice or predilections and all objectively.

With this general perception of the concept I would now cursorily glance at the concept of nominee vis-à-vis other statutes i.e. EPF Act, 1952 and Companies Act, 1956. Sub-para 3 of Para 63 of the EPF Scheme, 1952 provides that if a member has a family at the time of making a nomination the nomination shall be in favour of one or more persons belonging to his family. Any nomination made by such member in favour of a person not belonging to his family shall be invalid. Then very recently the Bombay High Court in the case of Antonio Joao Fernandes v. APFC Panji Goa & ors. 2010 (4) LLJ 460 referring to various cases held that under Employees Provident Fund & Misc. Provisions Act, 1952–Section 2(1) and Employees Provident Fund Scheme, para 61 that on nomination of PF amount, the nominee has no title and that persons entitled to succeed on heirs under law of succession are entitled to entire amount of PF of deceased, to the exclusion of nominee. There had been difference of opinion among various High Courts whether the nominee got the amount standing to credit of the deceased employee under EPF Act, 1952 to the exclusion of other heirs but this Bombay High Court case has taken care of this controversy and set at rest the conflict of opinion.

The law relating to nomination of shares is set out in Section 109-A of the Companies Act, 1956 pursuant to the amendment which became effective from 31.10.1998. Now Section 109-A sets out the rights of the holder of shares to nominate as well as the rights of the nominee. The Bombay High Court in the case of Harsha Nitin Kokate v. Saraswat Co-operative Bank Ltd. (2010) 5 Taxmann Com.43 (Bom) interpreted Section 109-A of the Companies Act and ruled that the rights of a nominee to shares of a company would override the rights of heirs to whom property may be bequeathed but in view of the Supreme Court case of Sarbati Devi and subsequent other cases it is doubtful whether this case of Bombay High Court would hold ground whether nomination under the Companies Act would give ownership rights. The Bombay High Court's main premise of nomination under Section 109-A has a reference to the provisions of the Depositories Act, 1996 which could be a salient feature of this case.

It is, therefore, submitted that some sincere efforts have been made herein to reconcile various view points on the concept of nominee and his rights vis-à-vis the legal heirs and conceptually clear concept is made available after analyzing summarily the available case law and it is concluded that the nominee is simply a collector of money and none else.
INTRODUCTION

Reporting to the shareholders is now at the centre stage of reforms and is an important activity on the part of the management of the company. The reporting requirements are partly driven by regulatory provisions and primarily driven by the corporate culture/interest of the professional managements in disclosing the required information to the shareholders. Recent developments in corporate financial reporting indicate a greater emphasis on better voluntary disclosures by the companies regarding their performance and state of affairs.

The quality and the transparency with which such disclosures are made in the Annual Reports enhance the comfort and the credibility of the Reporting Entity. The expectations of the readers of the Annual Reports have increased over a period of time past and professional managements are making their best efforts to meet those expectations by way of making the Annual Reports more educative and exhaustive.

Core Objectives of Reporting to Shareholders

An essential element in the implicit agreement between a company and an investor is that the investor will receive meaningful information on how the company they invested in is progressing. This obligation is expected to be substantially discharged through Annual Reports.

Keeping the above spirit of preparing the annual reports, there are three general components that need to be ensured in Reporting to the Shareholders, namely,

- Overview, objectives and highlights of the entity
- Review of the entity’s operations or activities
- Details and analyses of the entity’s financial performance/position and its relationship with its various stakeholders.
The above can be set out in various ways, depending on the nature of the business and the industries in which the company operates. The layout chosen, however, should have regard to the reporting principles set out above and the needs and expectations of shareholders.

Keeping the above in mind, there could be several objectives associated with the reporting to the shareholders. Some of the significant objectives are discussed below:

- To educate and inform shareholders (potential as well as current). This would include all matters of relevance to shareholders in their position as ultimate owners.
- To impart unbiased knowledge about the organization in an informative, structured and cost-effective manner.
- To report on the stewardship of the company by the directors and management over the previous year.
- To document the effectiveness of the accountability.
- To report on performance during the period under review and put that performance in context.
- To explain the objectives of the company and to outline strategy and future direction.
- To fulfill legal and regulatory responsibilities.

The key message from the above explanation is that the primary purpose of annual reports is accountability, particularly to shareholders. The most important factor is sharing of information and developments in the company and industry, with the investors and others to establish and maintain corporate democracy.

OECD Principles of Corporate Governance

Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) has issued certain principles to evaluate and improve the legal, institutional and regulatory framework for corporate governance in countries and to provide guidance and suggestions for stock exchanges, investors, companies, and other parties that have a role in the process of developing good corporate governance. One of the key principles related to Disclosure and Transparency is that the corporate governance framework should ensure that timely and accurate disclosure is made on all material matters regarding the company, including the financial situation, performance, ownership, and governance of the company.

According to these principles, information should be prepared and disclosed in accordance with high quality standards of accounting and disclosure of financial and non-financial information. The disclosure should include, but not be limited to, material information on:

- The financial and operating results of the company.
- Company objectives.
- Major share ownership and voting rights.
- Remuneration policy for members of the Board and key executives, and information about Board members, including their qualifications, the selection process, other company directorships and whether they are regarded as independent by the Board.
- Related party transactions.
- Foreseeable risk factors.
- Issues regarding employees and other stakeholders.
- Governance structures and policies, in particular, the content of any corporate governance code or policy and the process by which it is implemented.

United Nations (UN) Guidance on Good Practices in Corporate Governance Disclosure

The United Nations has published Guidance on Good Practices in Corporate Governance Disclosures on the basis of a consultative process and Inter Governmental Working Group of Experts of International Standards of Accounting and Reporting (ISAR) deliberations in this area and there is an updated version also of the UNCTAD 2002 report "Transparency and Disclosure Requirements for Corporate Governance" (TD/B/COM.2/ISAR/15). Some of the significant disclosures dealt with in this Guidance document are given below:
Financial disclosures
- Enterprises should disclose their financial and operating results.
- The board’s responsibilities regarding financial communications should be disclosed.
- Enterprises should fully disclose significant transactions with related parties.

Non-Financial Disclosures
- The objectives of the enterprise should be disclosed.
- The beneficiary ownership structure should be fully disclosed to all interested parties. Changes in the shareholdings of substantial investors should be disclosed to the market as soon as a company becomes aware of them.
- Rules and procedures governing the acquisition of corporate control in the capital markets and extraordinary transactions such as mergers and sales of substantial portions of corporate assets should be disclosed.
- The structure, role and functions of the Board.
- The Board’s role and functions must be fully disclosed.
- Ethics policy and support structure.
- Duties and qualifications of the Board and key executives.
- The Board should disclose whether it has a performance evaluation process in place, either for the board as a whole or for individual members. Disclosure should be made of how the board has evaluated its performance and how the results of the appraisal are being used.
- Directors should disclose the mechanism for setting directors’ remuneration and its structure.
- The Board should disclose whether it has established a succession plan for key executives and Board members to ensure that there is a strategy for continuity of operations.
- Conflict of interest affecting members of the Board should, if they are not avoidable, at least be disclosed. The Board of directors should disclose whether it has a formal procedure for addressing such situations, as well as the hierarchy of obligations to which directors are subject.
- The Board should disclose whether there is a mechanism protecting the rights of other stakeholders in a business. The role of employees in corporate governance should be disclosed.
- The Board should disclose its policy and performance in connection with environmental and social responsibility and the impact of this policy and performance on the company’s sustainability. The Board should give appropriate disclosures and assurance regarding its risk management objectives, systems and activities.
- The Board should disclose existing provisions for identifying and managing the effects of risk bearing activities. The board should report on internal control systems designed to mitigate risks. Such reporting should include risk identification mechanisms.
- The Board should disclose that it has confidence that the external auditors are independent and their competency and integrity have not been compromised in any way. The process for the appointment of and interaction with external auditors should be disclosed. Enterprises should disclose the scope of work and responsibilities of the internal audit function and the highest level within the leadership of the enterprise to which the internal audit function reports.
- Enterprises with no internal audit function should disclose the reasons for its absence.

According to the UN Guidance, all material issues relating to corporate governance of the enterprise should be disclosed in a timely fashion. The disclosure should be clear, concise and precise and should be governed by the “substance over form” principle. Where there is a local code on corporate governance, enterprises should follow a “comply or explain” rule whereby they disclose the extent to which they followed the local code’s recommendations and explain any deviations. Where there is no local code on corporate governance, companies should follow recognized international good practices.

Key Reporting Principles
Based on the international practices/guidance available, some of the key reporting principles to be kept in mind at the time of reporting to the shareholders are summarized below:

Consistency
The reporting format should be consistent so that shareholders are able to make easy comparisons with reports from prior periods. But consistency should not mean that the reporting and business developments, which could improve the effectiveness of the reporting format, should be overlooked.

Demonstration of Company’s Confidence
The entity should use its objectives and strategy to underpin its reporting and providing the context for its activities and performance. Strategic statements set in isolation from the rest of the reporting can appear as hollow statements of intent. The Reporting document should contain really good discussions to clearly demonstrate that those running the entity know what is important to their company. Poorly managed companies would not have that level of confidence.

Focus on Significant Matters
Key information and messages can get lost in the volume of data and the use of jargon. The Reporting document should help the reader to understand key strategic messages and to navigate easily through the report by using clear and consistent headings along with tables and charts.
Most of the disclosures in the annual reports are governed by the regulatory requirements of the respective countries and the trend of providing newer / innovative information / analysis to the Stakeholders, suomoto, by the professional managements of the corporates is also on the rise.

- Bridge the GAAP
  Whenever the reporting document contains non-GAAP disclosures, the reader should easily identify which are the non-GAAP numbers and it should always be reconciled to GAAP disclosures. Further, clear definitions of the terms used in non GAAP disclosures should be used.

- Reporting is not a Kitchen Sink
  The reporting document should not contain anything and everything without any prioritization, assessment of its importance, etc. Mixture of irrelevant information just to fill the pages would serve no purpose.

- Clarity
  The report should be written in plain English with a simple layout so that key messages are readily identified. This should be the norm for any kind of reporting to the shareholders.

- Specific/Straight Forward
  While preparing the annual reports, the contents should be written on the assumption that shareholders are not industry or finance specialists. Many times, the information presented in the annual reports are presented in a complex manner making it difficult for the shareholders to understand. Narratives should be concise and to-the-point, although this does not mean leaving out important material in order to meet any specific length limit.

- Disclose when you are in Doubt
  Transparency is the fundamental principle to be kept in mind while reporting to the shareholders. If there are significant reportable items which are not clear and subject to interpretations, it is always better to disclose the same with the logic/justification for the position adopted by the Company rather than not disclosing the same.

Contents of Annual Report

An annual report is a comprehensive report on a company's activities throughout the preceding year. Annual reports are intended to give shareholders and other interested people information about the company’s activities and financial performance. Most jurisdictions require companies to prepare and disclose annual reports, and many require the annual report to be filed at the company's registry. Companies listed on a stock exchange are also required to report at more frequent intervals (depending upon the rules of the stock exchange involved).

According to the US SEC, the annual report to shareholders is the principal document used by most public companies to disclose corporate information to their shareholders. It is usually a state-of-the-company report, including an opening letter from the Chief Executive Officer, financial data, results of continuing operations, market segment information, new product plans, subsidiary activities, and research and development activities on future programs.

The Annual Report sent to the Shareholders once in a year in India contain the Directors Report, Management Discussion & Analysis, Auditors’ Report and Financial Statements. Further, various entities also provide additional details such as the Company’s Historical Performance, Report on Current and Future Operations, Compliance with Corporate Governance Principles and Practices, Report on Corporate Social Responsibility Activities, Shareholder Information etc.

A recent study by an international agency found that companies have two main reasons for producing an annual report. The first is to meet the government’s regulatory requirements. The second is to market the company to key stakeholders.

Keeping all the above in mind, the contents of a typical annual report would include:

- Chairperson's Report
- CEO's Report
- Directors Report
- Auditor's Report on Corporate Governance
- Corporate Governance Statement of Compliance
- Statement of Directors’ Responsibilities
- Letter to the Shareholders

The annual report should contain financial statements including:

- Auditor's report on the financial statements
- Balance sheet
- Statement of retained earnings
- Income statement
- Cash flow statement
- Notes to the financial statements & Accounting policies

The details provided in the report are of use to investors to understand the company's financial position and future direction. The financial statements are usually compiled in... compliance with IFRS and/or the domestic GAAP, as well as domestic legislation. Most of the disclosures in the annual reports are governed by the regulatory requirements of the respective countries and the trend of providing newer, innovative information/analysis to the stakeholders, suomoto, by the professional managements of the corporates is also on the rise.

In addition to the statutory disclosures, there are several voluntary disclosures which could be seen in the modern annual reports of major companies. This is the outcome of voluntary effort on the part of companies to educate the shareholders and to give a better insight of the management, operations, economy and prospects of the company.

What do the different stakeholder groups want from the Annual Report?

The varied and diverse groups such as investors, government, industry, community, employees, customers, vendors, analysts, and media are all interested in very different aspects of a company. Each group will want to see its own interests are reflected in the annual report. A series of polls carried out by an international agency recently asked people what factors they considered most important when making a judgment about a company. It is found that different groups of people thought very different things were important. Some of such items noted in the survey are given below:

- Financial Performance
- Treatment of Staff
- Customer Service
- Quality of Management
- Image and Reputation
- Quality of Products
- Social Responsibility
- Corporate Strategy
- Market Share
- Accessibility/openness to Enquiries
- Honesty/Integrity
- Long Established
- Valuation
- Cashflow
- Sector/Industry in which they operate
- Environmental Responsibility

For companies, the primary stakeholder group is overwhelmingly the existing shareholders and potential investors. What do these people want from an annual report? Some of the views of the investors/shareholders during the survey are given below:

- "We want a document that presents a good investment case, details of the business drivers and strategy put in the context of the marketplace, and a description of any risk factors that might face that company."
- "Investors want an open, frank, honest view of the company and evidence that it is well managed."
- "Critical are accurate figures, accessibility and reliability, as well as material that is well sign posted and which hangs together coherently."
- "Too much narrative dilutes the message."
- "PR spin… glossy pictures … detract the annual report."
- "I detest reports that waste pages on environmental garbage. Environmental statements are all the rage but it's not useful or meaningful information. CSR statements are often bland and meaningless."
- "We use the annual report as an advertising medium for our products. We focus on the brands and on the new collections."
- "The annual report … forms a branding exercise also."
- "The Report and Accounts tries to be so many things to so many people. It is often the main marketing document for the Group, but it is also a statutory document."
- "We attempt to give a full and frank overview. Our report and accounts now run to several pages, very lengthy."
- "The Report and Accounts tries to be so many things to so many people. Hence it clearly will not fulfill all of those roles as well as it might."

The users of the annual reports look out for quality information and information that matches their expectations. The problem for most users is that they usually have inadequate or incomplete information about the companies they have invested in to manage the ever-changing dynamics of the current global economic situation. What makes things worse is that past financial performance-as every investor will tell you-is not the only guide to future returns. The annual report has a far more positive role to play in the whole process of governance and accountability. If companies are to fulfill both their legal and wider communications responsibilities effectively, they need to be very clear about their objectives. They also need to understand where the annual report fits as part of their total communications approach. Successful companies meet the objective of managing the expectations by having the strong relationships with customers, suppliers, staff, shareholders, and society and with the leadership that aligns them to a common purpose. The annual report cannot and should not focus on every single issue that is relevant to every single stakeholder. The annual report should focus on the issues that are material to the business as a whole, and bring them together in a single, coherent story. It should reveal the 'value proposition' of the total business. Communications and accountability are the hallmarks of good leaders, and that is the role of the annual report: to summarise all the critical issues that affect the success of the business, explain how they have created the past year's results, forecast how they might plan out in the future, and explain what is being done to ensure the company's future success in that environment.

New Concepts in Reporting to the Shareholders

The economic crisis was a sharp reminder that financial measurement alone cannot provide sufficient insight into business performance. Investors - and other stakeholders - are now demanding that management teams provide clear, unambiguous information about issues such as external drivers affecting their business, their approach to governance and managing risk, and how the business model really works. Some of the emerging concepts where more and more disclosures are appearing in the Annual Reports globally are detailed below;

Corporate Governance

In brief, Corporate Governance denotes voluntary ethical code of business and management of companies. It aims to maximize the effectiveness and accountability of the Board of Directors. Corporate Governance deals with terms, procedure, practices and implicit rules that determines a company's ability to take managerial decisions to maximize long term shareholders value and also to take care of all other shareholders in the enterprise.

Investors want to be assured about a couple of key items: that their money is in safe hands, that the assets they've entrusted are being deployed effectively and with sufficient controls to protect them from excessive risk. Good corporate governance isn't the pre-definition of roles and responsibilities. It is the very lifeblood of the best companies in the world; it's a way of reporting on business that requires management to "tell it how it is", rather than hiding behind the minimum statutory reporting requirement. Various Regulators have framed certain rules for desirable corporate governance and the Companies globally now have started to disclose the same.

Management Policies & Overview of Company

The current trend in annual accounts is to impart more transparency by disclosing various corporate and management objectives and policies, profile of the company and analyses of financial conditions and prospects. Some major heads are:

- Products and Product Range
- Area of Specialization
- Customers Profile and Market Stage
- Competitors
- Future Plans, Trends and Goals
- Financial Condition and Analysis
- Government Policy
- Risks and Threats

Sustainability Reporting

In these days, the stakeholders are pushing for information about companies' sustainability performance and it has become a real challenge for companies to respond efficiently and effectively. For multinational companies, it is also a challenge to report information that is based on consistent data from across the organisation. Ideally, reporting on sustainability is integrated into a single integrated report that communicates every aspect of a company's performance.

Organizations can improve their sustainability performance by measuring, monitoring and reporting on it, helping them to have a positive impact on society and the economy and thereby, ensure a sustainable future for the company. Effective sustainability reporting is a powerful part of communicating with stakeholders about how you are performing against your objectives. Companies that embrace this are likely to have an advantage over their competitors and boost value for shareholders.

The concept of accounting and disclosure of environmental matter has been rapidly emerging as an important dimension in corporate reports particularly in manufacturing organisation.

Ecological balance sheets could become a part of the annual reports in the coming decades.

Corporate Social Responsibility

There is growing attention on what contribution companies are making to our society and that negative perceptions can have a dramatic impact on the business and its reputation. Corporate social reporting is a new achievement to discharge the social obligations of the Corporates. The Directors' Report discharge this obligation in some of the cases, by briefly touching upon the Issues related to the social responsibilities. However, recent developments include new financial reporting tools like Social Income Statement, Social Balance Sheet and Corporate Social Report. It is worth noting that in several countries Regulators are making the Corporate social Responsibility a mandatory activity on the part of the Companies.

Economic Value Added (EVA)

Traditional approaches to measure ‘Shareholders Value Creation’ have used parameters such as earnings capitalization, market capitalization and present value of future cash flows. Extensive equity research has now established that it is not earnings per share, but value which is important. EVA is a new concept being applied to understand and evaluate financial performance. EVA is residual income after charging the company for the cost of capital provided by lenders and shareholders. In other words, EVA represents the Value Added to the shareholders by generating operating profits over and above the cost of capital employed in the business. It is those companies which earn higher returns than cost of capital that create value. Companies which earn lower returns than cost of capital are destroyers of shareholder value.

Brand Valuation

A balance sheet discloses the financial position of a company which is influenced by the economic sources it controls - its financial structure, liquidity and solvency, and its capacity to adapt to changes in the environment. However, it is becoming increasingly clear that intangible assets have a significant role in the growth of a company, so quite often to search for the value it leads back to understanding, evaluating and enhancing the intangible assets of the business.

A brand is much more than a trade mark or a logo. It is a trust mark of promise of quality and authenticity any person can rely upon. Brand equity is the value addition provided to a product or company by its brand name. It is the financial pursuit that a buyer is willing to pay for the brand over a generic or less worthy brand. It is not created overnight. It is the result of valueless pursuit of quality in manufacturing, selling services, advertising and marketing. Capitalizing the value of a company’s intangible assets on the balance sheet is a recent phenomenon. The task of measuring brand value is a complex one. Several models are available for accomplishing this e.g. brand-earnings multiple model, utility cost method, return on capital method, premium profit methods etc. These models are however, still subject of debate among researchers and using such models and data in predicting the future of any company, is risky, and should be adjudged critically.

Human Resource Valuation

Human resources represent the collective expertise, innovations, leadership, entrepreneurial, professional and managerial skills evolved in the employees of an organization. The non-human asset is reorganized as an asset and is therefore, recorded in the books and reported in the financial statements, whereas human assets are totally ignored by accountants. The fact that intellectual capital is an important and valuable asset has been validly recognized in the recent years.

Conclusion

The expectations of the Stakeholders are increasing every day and thanks to the globalization, the awareness amongst Shareholders has also increased substantially. Given the expectations of the shareholders/ society at large in obtaining more and more information from corporate managements and the complexity associated with some of the information presented in accordance with statutory requirements, the process of annual reporting to the shareholders poses a great challenge to corporate leadership. Preparation of the Annual Reports can no longer be considered as a formality by filling up pages with minimum / irrelevant/ complex information which the readers cannot put it in good use. In line with the shareholders expectations, the corporate sector is also at present moving towards the concept of shareholders education, transparency in disclosures and fulfillment of social obligations. Needless to add that many corporate entities globally have already initiated the required steps in this direction and are setting benchmarks for ensuring enhanced and value added disclosures in their Annual Reports to the Stakeholders.

If the annual reports are prepared keeping in mind the statutory requirements, emerging global trends of providing enhanced/ qualitative disclosures by making it more educative and informative and by maintaining the core principle of transparency, it would go a long way in building confidence in the minds of the Shareholders and other stakeholders.

The issue of Guidelines for Peer Review of Attestation Services by Practising Company Secretaries ("the Guidelines") by the Institute of Company Secretaries of India ("the Institute") is an exemplary step towards maintaining and enhancing the quality of attestation services rendered by the members of the Institute in practice. These Guidelines shall act as a mechanism to uphold the standards of the profession and instil a sense of greater trust and confidence in the eyes of the various stakeholders.

We know that the process of peer review encompasses an examination and review of the systems, procedures and practices by a Peer Reviewer to determine whether they have been put in place by the Practice Unit for ensuring the quality of attestation services as envisaged and implied / mandated by the Technical Standards and whether these were effective or not during the period under review.

Peer Review Methodology
The methodology of conducting a Peer Review consists of four stages, namely, preparation, planning, execution and reporting as explained below:

Stage I - Preparation
Embarking on a peer review, this stage includes selection of a Practice Unit for conducting peer review, notification of an impending review to the Practice Unit, the appointment of a Reviewer and intimation of his appointment.

(a) Notification to the Practice Unit:-- A Practice Unit which has been selected for a Peer Review will be notified in writing by the Peer Review Board ("the Board"). The Practice Unit so selected will also be sent a Questionnaire (as per prescribed... understand the system prevailing in the Practice Unit and to form a preliminary evaluation of the adequacy of the systems.

Stage II - Planning
(a) Information to be furnished by Practice Unit:– The Practice Unit shall within one month of being notified about peer review, furnish the following information to the Reviewer:

(i) Completed Questionnaire sent by the Board.
(ii) Complete list of attestation service clients for the year in respect of which the review is being done.

Apart from the above, the Reviewer may also seek from the Practice Unit any other information or further/ additional clarification on the information already furnished in order to facilitate selection of sample attestation services for review.

(b) Selection of Sample Attestation services Engagements by the Reviewer:– On receiving the information from the Practice Unit, the Reviewer shall select a sample of the attestation services that he would like to review and intimate the same to the Practice Unit. The sample should cover a fair cross-section of the Practice Unit’s attestation services engagements. The Reviewer shall give the Practice Unit at least two weeks time to make available the necessary records of the selected attestation services for review.

(c) Confirmation of visit: - The Reviewer will plan for an on-site review visit or initial meeting in consultation with and mutual consent of the Practice Unit in such a manner that the entire review process is completed within sixty days from the date of notification to the Practice Unit about its selection for review.

Stage III - Execution
(a) On-site review:– Peer Review visits will be conducted at the Practice Unit’s head office or other officially noted/recorded place of office. This on-site review should not extend beyond three working days.

(b) Initial meeting with the Practice Unit:– Before the commencement of the actual review, an initial meeting will be held between the Reviewer and the Practice Unit to discuss the agenda of the peer review and accuracy of the information given in the Questionnaire. This will help the Reviewer to Technical Standards. The Reviewer should ensure that the general controls on which he intends to rely upon is generally evident and functioning effectively in the Practice Unit during the period under review. Based on such evaluation, the reviewer needs to decide on the nature and extent of substantive procedures to obtain sufficient appropriate review evidence that the Practice Unit’s attestation processes meet the professional standards expected of it by the Institute. On the basis of his judgement, if the Reviewer chooses to rely upon the general controls, then a lower level of substantive testing may be justified. In cases, where the Reviewer chooses not to rely upon the general controls or is of the opinion that the standard of compliance is not satisfactory or appropriate, then he should adopt a higher level of substantive testing which involves a review of the attestation working papers (documentation) in order to establish whether the attestation work has been carried out as per the Technical Standards. Where the size of a Practice Unit is small or medium or not having elaborate general controls, the Reviewer should adopt substantive approach for conduct of review.

Stage IV- Reporting
(a) Preliminary Report:— After completion of the on-site review, the Reviewer shall, before making his report to the Board, communicate to the Practice Unit, a preliminary report on the areas where the systems and procedures are deficient or non-compliant with reference to any matter that has been noticed by him. Within twenty-one days after the date of receipt of the preliminary report, the Practice Unit shall make any submissions or representations, in writing to the Reviewer.

(b) Interim Report:—
(i) If the Reviewer is satisfied with the reply received from the Practice Unit, he shall submit a Peer Review Report to the Peer Review Board along with his initial findings, response by the Practice Unit and the manner in which the responses have been dealt with. A copy of the report shall also be forwarded to the Practice Unit.

(ii) In case the Reviewer is of the opinion that the response by the Practice Unit is not satisfactory, the Reviewer shall accordingly submit an Interim Report to the Peer Review Board incorporating his reasons for the same. In such case, the Peer Review Board may make recommendations to the Practice Unit regarding the application by it of Technical Standards and shall issue instructions for a “Follow Up” review not earlier than six months from the date on which the instruction is issued.

(c) Final Report:— Subsequent to follow-up review, the Reviewer shall submit a final report to the Peer Review Board incorporating the findings as discussed with the Practice Unit. If the Reviewer is dissatisfied even at the follow-up review, then he shall submit his final report incorporating the reasons for dissatisfaction. On the basis of the Reviewer’s final report and the Practice Unit’s submissions, the Board may either issue Peer Review Certificate to the Practice Unit or issue instructions to the Reviewer for a “Follow-up” review.

The process of peer review explained above shall also focus on the examination of office systems and procedures followed by the Practice Unit with regard to compliance of attestation services and training and capacity building programs for staff (particularly, the Apprentice Trainees).

Review of Office Systems and Procedures
Every Practice Unit is expected to put in place office systems and procedures including appropriate infrastructure to ensure that the attestation services are being carried out in accordance with the applicable Technical Standards and the quality of reporting is maintained. The applicability of office systems and procedures shall vary depending on the size and level of the Practice Unit. The Peer Reviewer shall verify whether the office systems and procedures followed by the Practice Unit were effective and operating continuously during the period under review. We provide below some efficient office systems and procedures which should be established and continuously followed by a Practice Unit to ensure quality control and the existence and effectiveness of the same shall be reviewed by the Peer Reviewer during the conduct of peer review process:

(i) Acceptance of assignment — Before accepting any attestation engagements, the Practice Unit must follow the procedure of receiving an appointment/engagement letter (also includes emails) from its client and also provide written confirmation of acceptance of the attestation engagement. The appointment letter should contain details about the nature and scope of the assignment, professional fee details and billing arrangements, management’s responsibility and other important terms and conditions. The proprietor/partner of the Practice Unit must invariably ensure communication with the previous PCS about his acceptance of the assignment as prescribed under the Code of Conduct for PCS issued by the Institute.

(ii) Allocation/Delegation of work assignments:– The Practice unit should ensure that the work responsibility allocated to staff is commensurate with his/her professional competence. The assistants should be given proper directions, explained their responsibilities and objectives of what they are doing before taking up the assignment. There should exist a system for scheduling of tasks, planning the time required and setting up realistic time frames within which a particular engagement may be completed which would help in time management.

(iii) Review of work done:– The managers/supervisors should monitor and periodically review the work done by the assistant(s) / Apprentice trainee(s). Before signing the reports/certificates prepared by the Apprentice trainee(s), the proprietor/partner must review the report on the basis of working papers collected and maintained by the Apprentice Trainee(s).

(iv) Document management system:– The Practice Unit must have a well established records management system to ensure easy filing, storage and retrieval of information. The record management system should be kept simple and easy to understand and manage. However, it is well acknowledged that document storage of paper documents is less convenient and more time consuming when documents are in need of retrieval. In today’s era of digitisation, the Practice Unit should also follow digital or electronic records management system by scanning the physical documents into digital format and then storing on an individual computer hard drive or on an individual hard drive which can be accessed via all the computers on a particular network. Digital document management keeps important documents and digital files at our fingertips, eliminates walls of filing cabinets, and provides the utmost in information security and disaster recovery.

(v) Maintenance of office library including e-library:– The Practice Unit should also set up an office library consisting of reference books and literature which would not only help the staff/Apprentice Trainee(s) in augmenting their theoretical knowledge but also provide in-house consultation. The library should be easily accessible at all times. Apart from maintaining a physical library, the Practice Unit should also have access to a Digital Library. Digital libraries facilitate creation, organization and management of multimedia digital content and provide search, retrieval and other information services over computer networks and other electronic media. Digital libraries not only offer significant and unparalleled improvement and value addition to library services but also save the precious time, strength and the energy of the users. Some of the important points to be considered in developing a digital library are digital collection or material selection, conversion of existing print, audio and video into digital format, cataloguing or metadata creation, storing, creating portals or gateway to the electronic collection available on the web and integrated access interface.

(vi) Office Décor and Infrastructure:– The Practice Unit must ensure that the décor/appearance of the office is satisfactory and cluster/dirt free. The office must be well equipped with necessary machines such as computers, printers, scanners, shredders, fax, telephones, etc. and easy access should be facilitated to the users at all times.

The above is not an exhaustive list and only illustrates certain important aspects of examination. The Peer Reviewer, on the basis of his judgment and depending on the size of the Practice Unit, may examine any other matters also.

Review of training and capacity building programs for staff

In a Practice Unit, the field work for attestation assignments is usually delegated to Apprentice Trainee(s)/assistants depending on their professional competence and the Partners / Proprietor of the Practice Unit authenticate their reports on the basis of the field work done by them and the working papers maintained. During discharge of their duties, the Trainees and staff are also required to interact and communicate with the clients. As such it is very important for a Practice Unit that the Apprentice Trainee and other staff are imparted periodical training and ensure that they take part in capacity building and professional development programmes. It is beyond doubt that the training sharpens practical skills of trainees and provides a platform where education and experience merge in a subtle way and it is this confluence which makes for a better professional. The need for imparting adequate training to the staff and ensuring their participation in capacity building programs can be emphasised as follows:

- Providing adequate theoretical knowledge for on the job practical application
- Improving professional skill and competence

- Development of personal/managerial skills
- Development of professional attitude
- Inculcating professional ethics

Obligations of the Practice Unit
- The Apprentice Trainee and other staff must be imparted periodical training through well planned in-house mechanism for training and upgrading the technical skills of the staff.
- The Practice Unit should also ensure that the Apprentice Trainee(s) take part in capacity building and professional development programmes including seminars, workshops, lectures organised by the Regional councils of the Institute.
- The staff must have access at all times to office library, internet and other sources of updated technical knowledge for necessary consultation.

Model Office of a Practising Company Secretary

While discussing or reading about the topic, peer review of Practising Company Secretaries, one question that naturally crops up is how should an ideal office of a Practising Company Secretary be? Though there are no laid down standard rules, office systems or procedures for administration for a Practising Company Secretary, we have made an attempt to put forward the ingredients of a successful working environment in the office of a Practising Company Secretary.

Proper office environment is necessary for the efficiency of work and quality of performance by employees in an office. Putting in place simple office systems and procedures would not only ensure smooth running of the office but also allow performance of work in an efficient manner bringing fewer frustrations, lower costs, more time and value to the business.

(i) 5S Methodology

The office 5S management methodology is an important organisational technique that originated from Japan. The term ‘5S’ is coined from the first letters of each of the 5 Japanese words that form the basis of this philosophy. This method is used for organising a workplace and is excellent for optimising an office environment.

(a) Seiri (Sorting):– This is the basic principle requiring removal of non-essential items from the office space resulting into an uncluttered office space. All those items which are not needed should be discarded and what one can do without for a long time should be filed or stored in a separate area. It can be implemented by sifting through the items in the office and appropriately tagging those that need to be discarded or stored.

(b) Set in Order (Seiton):– This phase involves straightening up the office area by arranging needed items so that they are readily accessible and labeled so that anyone can find them or put them away. It focuses on the need for arranging tools and equipment in an order that promotes optimum work flow. Having designated locations for all items in the work area enables employees to take control over their operations. Employees will be able to immediately see if things are out of place and if more materials, supplies, or tools need to be ordered.

(c) Shine/ Sweep (Seiso):– The third phase is dedicated to cleanliness. It is about creating a work environment that people want to work in. Each and every item in the office should be kept in immaculate condition. The Shine step includes three primary activities which include getting the workplace clean, maintaining its appearance, and using preventative measures to keep it clean. The key purpose is to keep everything in top condition so that when someone needs to use something, it is ready to be used. Striving to maintain each item in its best condition extends its usability in the long term and also helps in making work easier.

(d) Standardize (Seiketsu):– Bringing standardization into the office allows for systems to be put in place so everyone follows procedures the same way. It can be achieved by laying down systems and procedures, developing checklists, office procedure manuals and other mechanisms leading to lower error rate. Standards should be easily understood and easy to communicate.
(e) Sustain (Shitsuke)-- The fifth and final "S" is about creating habits. The attitudes and activities must be institutionalized and repeated until they become part of the culture and the fabric of everyday work. Education about the 5S System and its benefits is a useful tool to sustain the program. Regular audits should be conducted to measure 5-S performance in each work area and the results should be posted in public areas. Appropriate recognition and reward should be provided to team members who have successfully implemented the 5S methodology.

Further, office administration is now a combination of human resource management, information technology management, office resource management, written communication and verbal communication.

(ii) Human Resource Management

Human resource management is the management of an organization's workforce, or human resources and focuses on recruitment of, management of, and providing direction for the organisation's employees. It enables employees to contribute effectively and productively to the overall direction and the accomplishment of goals and objectives of the organisation. In relation to the office of a Practising Company Secretary, this function comprises of:

- Staff Induction Programme to acquaint the new appointee with the office policies and systems and the existing Staff
- Imparting training of Trainees/ Other Staff, both in-house and on-the-job to provide adequate theoretical knowledge and matching the same to the practical experience
- Assignment of work on the basis of required skills and competence
- Maintaining motivation by providing incentives
- Staff Supervision and Development including development of managerial skills, professional attitude and ethics
- Review of work to satisfy that in carrying out the assignment the policies and procedures established by the firm has been followed ensuring compliance with the applicable Technical Standards and providing guidance in the areas of further improvement.
- Performance appraisal and Awarding recognition for excellence in work performance in the form of any title such as "Employee/ Trainee of the Month" or cash bonuses, etc.
- Ensuring employee welfare by providing favourable working conditions and amenities such as rest and lunch rooms, transport, medical assistance, health and safety, etc.
- Ensuring availability of expertise for in-house as well as outside consultation.

(iii) Information Technology Management:

Information technology management is concerned with the management of all the technology resources of a firm according to its needs and priorities. These resources may include tangible investments like computer hardware, software, data, networks and data centre facilities, as well as the staffs who are hired to maintain them. It entails the following activities:

- Setting up sufficient number of workstations (computer units) ensuring uninterrupted work flow.
- Necessary and latest software installations on computers to aid completion of work in an easier and faster way.
- Protecting computers from viruses by installing Antivirus software and updating it regularly.
- Periodically updating computer operating systems to stay in tune with technology requirements and to fix security holes.
- Taking regular data backup to protect against any unfortunate loss of data and to store a copy of backup offsite.
- Password-protecting important documents, files and folders.
- Preventive maintenance of computer hardware and software

(iv) Office Resource Management:

Office resource management deals with the management of available office resources in the most efficient way possible including human resources and technology resources, which have already been discussed above. It constitutes the following functions:

- Maintaining simple, spacious and cluster-free office space
- Following proper document management system to

Verbal/ Oral Communication
People communicate in businesses with each other most often by oral communication. Verbal communication can be used to inform, inquire, argue and discuss topics of all kinds. It is vital to teaching and learning, as well as forming bonds and building relationships with other people. Interpersonal communication and public speaking are the two basic types of verbal communication. Etiquette is very important in interpersonal speaking and hierarchal communication. To be an effective communicator one must speak in a manner that is not offending to the receiver. It is necessary to pay attention to what you say and how you say it. Speaking clearly and enunciating words and being conscious of nonverbal aspects such as eye contact, posture and facial expressions will produce the desired effect.

Concept of Audit Trails and Audit Diary
A Practising Company Secretary is required to issue various reports and certificates to its clients from time to time with regard to the state of compliance with the applicable laws, rules, regulations, circulars, or notifications as stipulated by the statutory and regulatory authorities. Before issuing any such certificate or report, it is requisite for the PCS to perform audit of the relevant records, documents, files, registers, etc. based on the certification requirements of his clients in order to form his own opinion. The auditing assignments normally undertaken by a Practising Company Secretary includes the following:

(a) Secretarial audit for issuing Secretarial Audit Report,
(b) Compliance audit for issuing Compliance certificate in terms of Section 383(1A) of the Companies Act, 1956,
(c) Corporate governance audit for issuing Corporate Governance Certificate in terms of Clause 49 of the Listing Agreement,
(d) Annual Return audit for signing of Annual Return of a listed company under section 161 of the Companies Act, 1956,
(e) Share Transfer Audit of listed companies for issue of Certificate under Clause 47(c) of the Listing Agreement.

Audit Trails
Audit Trail refers to the series of documents, computer files, and other records that are examined during an audit, and shows how the company has complied with the relevant and applicable statutory laws, rules, regulations, circulars, notifications, etc. during a particular year or the period of review or for a particular event. An Audit Trail is a chain of evidence that can be used to trace the various actions performed by the company as required under various statutory laws and it helps to verify whether the actions were in adherence/ compliance with the rules and regulations laid down by the statute. An audit trail can be either a paper or electronic trail that provides documented history of a transaction in a company.

Audit trails can be simplistic or complicated, depending on the scope and complexity of the audit i.e. various statutes, laws, rules and regulations being covered for the purpose of audit. The wider the scope of audit, the greater number of documents needs to be examined by the PCS for issuing the report. The presence of a reliable and easy to follow audit trail is an indicator of good internal controls instituted by a company, and forms the basis of objectivity. An audit trail consisting of careful record keeping will provide the necessary documentation. Maintaining an organized, easy-to-use filing system keeps these documents within easy reach at all times and also speeds the audit process.

While conducting peer review of a Practice Unit, the Peer Reviewer should also verify whether the Practice Unit has followed proper Audit Trail during the course of audit for issuing various reports and certificates and whether working papers and copies of supporting documents/ evidence/ details obtained from the clients during the course of audit have been properly maintained.

Audit Diary

The Apprentice Trainees and other staff must maintain diaries to record daily activities undertaken during the course of an audit including proceedings of any meeting/discussion held, verbal explanations and clarifications given, observations made etc. Audit Diary is an important tool in the hands of the auditor / audit team which provides information on the following:

- Who - who has carried out the audit?
- Where - where has the audit been conducted?
- When - when is audit undertaken?
- What - what is purpose and scope of audit?

The contents of the diary, inter alia, include name and basic info of the company, Information of the auditor, scope & objective of the audit being carried out, methodology of audit, period of audit, documents verified during the course of audit, the important points which need further clarification/ discussion, etc. Such diaries should be periodically inspected by the PCS to maintain proper records about the progress of training imparted to the Apprentice Trainees.

Maintaining audit diary by the members of the audit team of the Practice Unit is undoubtedly of great importance because of the reasons enumerated as follows:

- There are less chances of missing any observations / irregularities as they are instantaneously recorded in the audit diary.
- It works as a proof of the work done during the audit.
- It can be used as evidence in a case of negligence charge against the PCS.
- It can be used for future guidance and reference.
- It helps in completing the audit work smoothly.

Conclusion

On a plain reading of the peer review methodology, it is true that it appears to be a simple and obvious process without much complexity. However, with each practical application of the peer review process, the areas of improvement would be discernible and accordingly, the process will gradually get refined. Also, an office of a Practising Company Secretary must have certain established systems, policies and procedures to ensure quality control of the attestation assignments handled by it depending on the size and level of the Practice Unit. Putting in place simple office systems and procedures would not only ensure smooth running of the office but also allow performance of work in an efficient manner bringing fewer frustrations, lower costs, more time and value to the business.
Corporate Laws

Brief facts of the issue involved
The main issue involved in this batch of appeal is whether directors alone of a company can be prosecuted without making the company as one of the accused. The Supreme Court in the case of Sheoratan Agarwal & Anr v. State of Madhya Pradesh, (1984) 4 SCC 352 had held that directors alone could be prosecuted without making the company as an accused party. However, the Supreme Court in the case of State of Madras v. C.V. Parekh & Anr (1970) 3 SCC 491 has held that without impleading the company its directors cannot be prosecuted. Conflicting judgments have been passed from time to time and the issue was once again raised in the present batch of appeals. After considering numerous judgments and making an elaborate analysis, the Supreme Court of India had restated the law on this aspect.

Decision and Reason
With greatest respect to the learned Judges in Sheoratan Agarwal(supra), the authoritative pronouncement in C.V. Parekh (supra) has not been appositely appreciated. The decision has been distinguished despite the clear dictum that the first condition for the applicability of Section 10 of the 1955 Act is that there has to be a contravention by the company itself. In our humblest view, the said analysis of the verdict is not correct. Quite apart, the decision in C.V. Parekh (supra) was under Section 10(a) of the 1955 Act and rendered by a three-Judge Bench and if such a view was going to be expressed, it would have been appropriate to refer the matter to a larger Bench. However, the two-Judge Bench chose it appropriate to distinguish the same on the rationale which we have reproduced hereinabove. We repeat with the deepest respect that we are unable to agree with the aforesaid view.

We have already opined that the decision in Sheoratan Agarwal (supra) runs counter to the ratio laid down in the case of C.V. Parekh (supra) which is by a larger Bench and hence, is a binding precedent. On the aforesaid ratiocination, the decision in Anil Hada (supra) has to be treated as not laying down the correct law as far as it states that the director or any other officer can be prosecuted without impleadment of the company. Needless to emphasize, the matter would stand on a different footing where there is some legal impediment and the doctrine of lex non cogit ad impossibilia gets attracted.

In view of our aforesaid analysis, we arrive at the irresistible conclusion that for maintaining the prosecution under Section 141 of the Act, arraigning of a company as an accused is imperative. The other categories of offenders can only be brought in the dragnet on the touchstone of vicarious liability as the same has been stipulated in the provision itself. We say so on the basis of the ratio laid down in C.V. Parekh (supra) which is a three-Judge Bench decision. Thus, the view expressed in Sheoratan Agarwal (supra) does not correctly lay down the law and, accordingly, is hereby overruled.
AGARPARA JUTE MILLS LTD v. BIFR & ORS [DEL]
WP (C) No.2728 of 2012
Sanjay Kishan Kaul & Rajiv Shakdher, JJ.
[Decided on 08/05/2012]

Section 25 (1) of the Sick Industrial Companies (Special Provisions) Act, 1985 read with section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963 - Appeal filed after the prescribed period- whether the delay can be condoned-Held,No.

Brief facts
The appeal filed by the appellant before the AAIFR has been dismissed vide impugned order dated 9.11.2011 as being barred by time. The petitioner applied for a certified copy of the order on the same date, which was received on 12.11.2010 but filed the appeal on 31.1.2011. Thus, it is not in dispute that the appeal is barred by time and is even beyond the window of extra fifteen (15) days available to the appellant, the same being filed even beyond sixty (60) days. The appeal was accompanied by an application for condonation of delay. In terms of the impugned order the AAIFR has found that it has no power to condone the delay beyond the period of sixty (60) days in view of the provisions of Section 25 (1) of the Sick Industrial Companies (Special Provisions) Act, 1985 (hereinafter referred to as the SICA).

Decision: Petition dismissed.

Reason
We are in agreement with the view taken by the AAIFR in view of the statutory provision. Where the legislature prescribed a special limitation for the purpose of the appeal and the period of limitation of 60 days was to be computed after taking the aid of Section 45 and 12 of the Limitation Act, the specific inclusion of these sections meant that to that extent only the provisions of the Limitation Act stood extended and the applicability of the other provisions, by necessary implication stood excluded.

As far as the language of Section 34 of the 1996 Act is concerned, the crucial words are ‘but not thereafter’ used in the proviso to sub-section (3). In our opinion, this phrase would amount to an express exclusion within the meaning of Section 29(2) of the Limitation Act, and would therefore bar the application of section 5 of that Act. Parliament did not need to go further. To hold that the Court could entertain an application to set aside the Award beyond the extended period under the proviso, would render the phrase ‘but not thereafter’ wholly otiose. No principle of interpretation would justify such a result.

Apart from the language, ‘express exclusion’ may follow from the scheme and object of the special or local law. Even in a case, where the special law does not exclude the provisions of Sections 4 to 24 of the Limitation Act by an express reference, it would nonetheless be open to the Court to examine whether and to what extent the nature of those provisions or the nature of the subject-matter and scheme of the special law exclude their operation.

Even otherwise if the merits of the explanation given for filing the appeal belatedly are examined, (as much stress was laid on this aspect by learned counsel for the petitioners) we find that the same do not disclose sufficient cause as it is the own say of the petitioner that an appeal filed by the holding company is pending and the opinion received earlier was against filing an appeal but a subsequent opinion advised the petitioner to file an appeal and, thus, the appeal has been filed belatedly. The petitioner having received the certified copy, obtained the legal opinion and taken a conscious decision not to file an appeal cannot subsequently file an appeal belatedly and plead that the delay should be condoned because another legal advice received thereafter was to file an appeal.

We, thus, find that neither is there any power to condone the delay with the AAIFR nor was there any sufficient cause shown to condone the delay, thus, on both accounts there is no ground made out to interfere with the impugned order under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

BIPROMASZ BIPRON TRADING SA v. BHARAT ELECTRONICS LIMITED [SC]
Arbitration Petition No.19 of 2011
Surinder Singh Nijjar, J.
Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 - Section 11 - Appointment of arbitrator by court - Contract contained a named arbitrator - Whether the court can appoint an arbitrator - Held, Yes.

Brief facts

The Respondent had entered into a contract with the Petitioner by way of placing a Purchase Order for the supply of Hydraulic Motor, Actuating Cylinder, EL Motor EDM, Converter and GYRO Unit. The contract contained an arbitration clause under which the CMD of the Respondent was nominated as the sole arbitrator. Disputes arose between the parties and the Petitioner approached the Supreme Court for the appointment of arbitrator. Respondent contested that as per the contract only the CMD of the company can be appointed as the arbitrator.

Decision: Petition allowed.

Reason

I have heard the learned counsel for the parties. It would not be possible to reject the petition merely on the ground that this Court would have no power to make an appointment of an arbitrator other than the Chairman-cum-Managing Director or his designate. This Court would have the power to appoint a person other than the named arbitrator, upon examination of the relevant facts, which would tend to indicate that the named arbitrator is not likely to be impartial. In this case, the petitioner had clearly pleaded that the named arbitrator is a direct subordinate of the CMD and employee of the respondent. CMD is the controlling authority of all the employees, who have been dealing with the subject matter in the present dispute and also controlling authority of the named arbitrator. Apprehending that the CMD, who had been dealing with the entire contract would not act impartially as an arbitrator, the petitioner had issued a notice on 20th May, 2011. In this notice, it was pointed out that while the entire process of the performance of the contract was going on, the CMD had issued a letter on 5th June, 2009 to the petitioner stating that as per the company's directives, all pending supplies as on that date were "put on hold". After the aforesaid communication, no communication was issued to the petitioner for supply of the goods as per the Purchase Order dated 3rd December, 2009. Even subsequently, there were difficulties when a further lot of 24 units were supplied. The detailed submissions made by the petitioner have been noticed in the earlier part of the judgment.

Keeping in view the aforesaid facts, I am of the opinion that it would not be unreasonable for the petitioner to entertain the plea that the arbitrator appointed by the respondent would not be impartial. The CMD itself would not be able to act independently and impartially being amenable to the directions issued by the Ministry of Defence. In similar circumstances, this Court in the case of Denel (Proprietary) Limited v. Bharat Electronics Limited & Anr. (supra), observed as follows:-

"However, considering the peculiar conditions in the present case, whereby the arbitrator sought to be appointed under the arbitration clause, is the Managing Director of the Company against whom the dispute is raised (the respondents). In addition to that, the said Managing Director of Bharat Electronics Ltd. which is a "government company" is also bound by the direction/instruction issued by his superior authorities. It is also the case of the respondent in the reply to the notice issued by the respondent, though it is liable to pay the amount due under the purchase orders, it is not in a position to settle the dues only because of the directions issued by the Ministry of Defence, Government of India. It only shows that the Managing Director may not be in a position to independently decide the dispute between the parties."

"In my opinion, the facts in the present case are similar and, therefore, a similar course needs to be adopted."

UNION TERRITORY OF LAKSHADWEEP & ORS v. SEASHELLS BEACH RESORT & ORS [SC]

Civil Appeal of 2012 (Arising out of SLP (Civil) No.5967-5968 of 2012)

T.S. Thakur & Gyan Sudha Misra, JJ.

[Decided on 11/05/2012]

Environment (Protection) Act, 1986 - Section 3 - Setting up of beach resort - Compliance with environmental issues - Supreme Court issues elaborate directions.

Brief facts

These appeals have been filed by the Union Territory of Lakshadweep against an order dated 16th January, 2012 passed by the High Court of Kerala at Ernakulam whereby the High Court has directed the appellants to process the applications made by respondent No.1-Seashells Beach Resort, hereinafter referred to as respondent, for all clearances including finalisation of CRZ norms and pending final decision on the same, to permit the respondent to run the resort established by it at Agatti. The High Court has further directed the appellants to issue travel permits and entry passes required by tourists making use of the accommodation in the said resort.

Lakshadweep Administration finds fault with the direction... issued by the High Court on several grounds including the ground that respondent-writ petitioner before the High Court had no licence from the Tourism Department and no clearance from the Coastal Zone Regulatory Authority or the Pollution Control Board to run the resort established by it. It is alleged that the direction issued by the High Court amounts to permitting the respondent to run a resort sans legal permission and authority and without any check, control or regulation regarding its affairs. The Administration also points out that diversion of land use qua and without any check, control or regulation regarding its affairs.

We shall deal with the questions ad-seriatim.

1) Whether the High Court was in the facts and circumstances of the case correct in allowing the interim prayer of the respondent and permitting him to run the resort? and

2) If the answer to question No. 1 be in the negative, what is the way forward?

We shall deal with the questions ad-seriatim.

Re. Question No. 1

The High Court has not indeed done justice to the issues raised by the parties, whether the same relate to the alleged violations committed by the respondent-entrepreneur in setting up of a resort or the Administration permitting similar resorts to operate in the garb of ‘home stay’ arrangement while preventing the respondent from doing so. The High Court has not even referred to the Notification dated 6th January, 2011 issued by the Government under Section 3 of the Environment (Protection) Act, 1986 or the effect thereof on the establishment of the project that does not so far have a final clearance and completion certificate from the competent authority and is being accused of serious violations. The High Court’s order proceeds entirely on humanitarian and equitable considerations, in the process neglecting equally, if not more, important questions that have an impact on the future development and management of the Lakshadweep Islands. We are not, therefore, satisfied with the manner in which the High Court has proceeded in the matter. The High Court obviously failed to appreciate that equitable considerations were wholly misplaced in a situation where the very erection of the building to be used as a resort violated the CRZ requirements or the conditions of land use diversion. No one could in the teeth of those requirements claim equity or present the administration with a fait accompli. The resort could not be commissioned under a legal order in disregard of serious objections that were raised by the Administration, which objections had to be answered before any direction could be issued from a writ Court. We have, therefore, no hesitation in holding that the order passed by the High Court is legally unsustainable. Question No. 1 is accordingly answered in the negative, and the impugned order set aside.

Re. Question No. 2

In the light of the above we have no difficulty in directing the constitution of an Expert Committee with a request to it to look into the matters set out in the terms of reference which we are setting out herein below.

(I) The Committee shall use its expertise for evaluation of the draft IIMPs received from CESS or others that may be received in due course, and make such additions or alterations in the same as it may consider proper having regard, inter alia, to the following:

(a) The development already in existence and the future developments, conservation and preservation of the unique environment and its marine area and to promote development through a sustainable integrated management plan based on scientific principles, taking into account the vulnerability of the coast to natural hazards.

Decision: Directions issued.

Reason

We have referred copiously to the pleadings of the parties only to draw the contours of the controversy before us. Broadly speaking only two questions arise for our determination in the backdrop set out above. These are:

1) Whether the High Court was in the facts and circumstances of the case correct in allowing the interim prayer of the respondent and permitting him to run the resort? and

2) If the answer to question No. 1 be in the negative, what is the way forward?

We shall deal with the questions ad-seriatim.
(b) The impact of the proposed development on the livelihood of indigenous population and the various vulnerability issues.
(c) Reservation/identification of suitable locations and areas for creation of public and semi-public facilities for development of tourism in the islands.
(d) Redevelopment/sustainable development of inhabited and/or uninhabited areas of each island as independent and self-contained units or as part of a larger development plan along scientific lines.

(II) The Committee may consider and recommend incorporation in the IIMP, Development Control Regulations governing the developmental activity in accordance with the final proposals on the IIMP for the purpose of islanders' seeking clearances for permissible development activities on the islands. Such regulations may also include setting up of an appellate authority for the grievance redressal of the islanders with respect to such clearances. The Committee may suggest an outer time frame within which the Authority may have to respond to the applications of the islanders seeking permission for development activities.

(III) The Committee may examine the desirability and the feasibility of running 'home stays' for tourism purpose in the islands and may suggest the same to be incorporated in the IIMPs. The Committee may examine and suggest necessary guidelines keeping in mind environmental, economic and security considerations for running of such Home stays including norms/rules for such 'home stays' and the number of 'home stays' to be permitted, the number of permits to be granted, the norms for identification of houses for home stays, and the facilities to be offered etc.

(IV) The Committee may in its wisdom and discretion make suggestions on any other issue concerning the islands which it may deem fit.

The Committee shall examine allegations regarding violation of the CRZ and other irregularities committed by the respondent or by other individuals/entities in relation to establishment and/or running resorts and 'home stays' in the islands. Allegations regarding irregularities in the matter of grant of permits to the tourists visiting the islands as also in regard to permissions granted to the resort owners/home stays to operate on the islands shall also be examined by the Committee. So, also the Committee shall be free to examine whether any official of the Lakshadweep Administration has been guilty of any act of omission or commission in the discharge of his official duties and if considered necessary recommend action against such officials.

SUBHASH CHANDRA VASHISHTH v. INSTITUTE OF CHARTERED ACCOUNTANTS OF INDIA [DEL]

W.P.(C) 2619/2012 & CM NO.5629/2012

SAHAI ENDLAW, J.

[Decided on 02/05/2012]

Disabilities Act-facilities for differently abled candidates - examinations of ICAI-Guidelines for permitting a writer for a differently abled candidate - rigours of certain conditions-court removes such conditions and issues directions to be considered.

Brief facts

This petition filed in public interest has been listed and is taken up for hearing on urgent mentioning. The petitioner, an Advocate, invites attention of this Court to the difficulties likely to be faced by the differently abled candidates in the examinations being held by the respondent, The Institute of Chartered Accountants of India (ICAI). It is pleaded that the Guidelines prescribing the procedure to be followed regarding granting of Writer and extra time to the Differently Abled Candidates taking the examination, are arbitrary and impractical and interfere with the right of the said candidates to take the examination.

The petition takes objection to the following conditions: - a. The Writer should not be above 20 years of age as on the date of commencement of a particular examination. b. The Writer should be the same person for all the papers of an examination and no request for Change of Writer is permitted. c. The Writer should not be a relative of the candidate for whom he/she is acting as a Writer.

The petitioner, immediately after issuance of Guidelines aforesaid, made a representation to the Chief Commissioner under the Disabilities Act for taking up the issue with the respondent ICAI and this petition is filed when the respondent ICAI in spite of directive of the said Chief Commissioner, has not changed the Guidelines.

Decision: Directions issued.

Reason

We are of the view that once embargo on the qualifications of the Writer is put, we do not find any purpose in fixing the upper age limit of 20 years or in excluding the relative of the examinee from being his/her Writer. It is normally seen that it is easy for a relative to come forward and become the Writer for a differently abled. We find merit in the contention of the counsel for the petitioner that in this season of examinations, any under 20 years of age person is likely to be busy in his/her own examination and unlikely to agree to be a Writer for a differently abled examinee. The purpose of the respondent ICAI of preventing use of unfair means, can be taken care of by allowing only those person, even if related to the examinee and even if over 20 years of age, who are not familiar with the subject of examination viz. persons who is either a Chartered Accountant, Company Secretary, Cost Accountant or qualified in Corporate Laws or Commerce stream can be prohibited. Other persons irrespective of relationship and age should be allowed by the respondent ICAI to act as Writer.

In so far as change of Writer is concerned, the counsel for respondent ICAI makes a statement at the bar that in case there is a need to change the Writer for the reasons beyond the control of the examinee or the Writer, and a request in this behalf is made, change would be allowed.

We direct accordingly and we make it clear that our directions aforesaid are only for the current examinations and the said Examination Committee in its meeting to be held will be entitled to take its own decision after considering the difficulties pointed out by the petitioner in this petition. This petition shall also be placed before the Examination Committee and treated as representation of the petitioner and the aforesaid arrangement made by us for the present examinations would not be reflective of any final opinion in this matter.

In view of aforesaid, we do not deem it expedient to keep this petition pending. We also make it clear that in case any amendments in the Guidelines are made by the respondent ICAI pursuant to the recommendations of the Examination Committee and the petitioner still feels aggrieved thereagainst, it would be open to the petitioner to approach the Courts again.

Civil Appeal No.3905 of 2012 (Arising out of SLP(Civil) No. 17943 of 2008)

R.M. Lodha & H.L. Gokhale, JJ.

[Decided on 25/04/2012]

Service tax-Material handling service - Material handling contract - obligation to assume tax liability on the handler - Service tax to be borne by the recipient-Recipient shifted the liability to the handler - Whether tenable - Held, Yes.

Brief facts

The appellant a Govt. of India undertaking is engaged in the manufacture of steel products and pig-iron for sale in the domestic and export markets. The respondent is a partnership firm carrying on the business of transportation of goods. In the year 1997, the appellant appointed the respondent as the handling contractor in respect of appellant's iron and steel materials and a formal contract was entered into between the two of them on 17.6.1998. Terms and conditions for handling of iron and steel materials though recorded in a separate document formed a part of this contract. Clause 9.3 thereof read as follows:-

"9.3. The Contractor shall bear and pay all taxes, duties and other liabilities in connection with discharge of his obligations under this order. Any income tax or any other taxes or duties which the company may be required by law to deduct shall be deducted at source and the same shall be paid to the Tax Authorities for the account of the Contractor and the Company shall provide the Contractor with required Tax Deduction Certificate."

The service tax was brought into force on 5.11.1997 vide Notification No.44/77 with effect from 16.11.1997. Consequent thereupon, the appellant deducted 5% tax on the bills of the respondent for the period 30.11.1997 to 6.8.1999. The respondent, however, refused to accept the deductions, and raised a dispute for arbitration under clause 15 of the terms and conditions mentioned above. This dispute was referred for the arbitration of a sole arbitrator, a retired Judge of the Delhi High Court.

The arbitrator dismissed the claim of the respondent and the respondent filed an appeal before the High Court of Judicature at Bombay. A Learned Single Judge of the High Court allowed the petition. The appellant preferred an appeal to a Division Bench of Bombay High Court against the said judgment and order, which dismissed the appeal. Being aggrieved by the said judgment and order, the present appeal has been filed.

Decision: Appeal allowed.

Reason

We have noted the submissions of both the learned counsel. If we see the evolution of the service tax law, initially the liability to pay the service tax was on the service provider, though it is now provided by the amendment of 2000 that the same is on the person who avails of the service. It is relevant to note that the agreement between the parties was entered into on 7.6.1998. The appellant had deducted 5% service tax on the bills of the respondent for the period 30.11.1997 to 6.8.1999 which in fact it was required to deduct under the service tax law as it then stood. Subsequently, by the amendment of the definition of assessee effected on 12.5.2000 (though retrospectively effective from 16.7.1997) the liability to pay the service tax was shifted to the person who was availing the service as the assessee. We must note that it is thereafter that the parties have gone for arbitration, and the respondent has relied upon the changed definition of assessee to contend that the tax liability was that of the appellant.

We are concerned with the question as to what was the intention of the parties when they entered into the contract on 7.6.1998, and how the particular clause 9.3 is to be read. Since clause 9.3 of the contract refers to the liabilities of the contractor in connection with discharge of his obligations, one will have to refer to clause 6 of the Terms and Conditions. If we look into this clause 6.0, we find that the obligations of the contractor are defined and spelt out in minute details.

Clause 6.0 is split into 33 sub-clauses, and it provides for obligations of the contractor in various situations concerning the clearance of consignments, and the services to be provided by the respondent as the handling contractor wherefrom the tax liability arises. The contractor is made responsible for pilferage, any loss or misplacement of the consignments also. Clause 9.0 which deals with payment of bills, provides in clauses 9.1 and 9.2 that the bills will be prepared on the basis of the actual operations performed and the materials accounted on the basis of weight carried and received. Clause 9.3 has to be seen on this background. The tax liability will depend upon the value of the taxable service provided, which will vary depending upon the volume of the goods handled.

It was submitted on behalf of the respondent that clause 9.3 and the contract must be read as a whole and one must harmonise various provisions thereof. However, in fact when that is done as above, clause 9.3 will have to be held as containing the stipulation of the contractor accepting the liability to pay the service tax, since the liability did arise out of the discharge of his obligations under the contract. It appears that the rationale behind clause 9.3 was that the petitioner as a Public Sector Undertaking should be thereby exposed only to a known and determined liability under the contract, and all other risks regarding taxes arising out of the obligations of the contractor are assumed by the contractor.

As far as the submission of shifting of tax liability is concerned, as observed in paragraph 9 of Laghu Udyog Bharati (Supra), service tax is an indirect tax, and it is possible that it may be passed on. Therefore, an assessee can certainly enter into a contract to shift its liability of service tax. Though the appellant became the assessee due to amendment of 2000, his position is exactly the same as in respect of Sales Tax, where the seller is the assessee, and is liable to pay Sales Tax to the tax authorities, but it is open to the seller, under his contract with the buyer, to recover the Sales Tax from the buyer, and to pass on the tax burden to him. Therefore, though there is no difficulty in accepting that after the amendment of 2000 the liability to pay the service tax is on the appellant as the assessee, the liability arose out of the services rendered by the respondent to the appellant, and that too prior to this amendment when the liability was on the service provider. The provisions concerning service tax are relevant only as between the appellant as an assessee under the statute and the tax authorities. This statutory provision can be of no relevance to determine the rights and liabilities between the appellant and the respondent as agreed in the contract between two of them. There was nothing in law to prevent the appellant from entering into an agreement with the respondent handling contractor that the burden of any tax arising out of obligations of the respondent under the contract would be borne by the respondent.

If this clause was to be read as meaning that the respondent would be liable only to honour his own tax liabilities, and not the liabilities arising out of the obligations under the contract, there was no need to make such a provision in a bilateral commercial document executed by the parties, since the respondent would be otherwise also liable for the same. Therefore, clause 9.3 will have to be read as incorporated only with a view to provide for contractor's acceptance of the tax liability arising out of his obligations under the contract.

In any case, assuming that clause 9.3 was capable of two interpretations, the view taken by the arbitrator was clearly a possible if not a plausible one. It is not possible to say that the arbitrator had travelled outside his jurisdiction, or that the view taken by him was against the terms of contract. That being the position, the High Court had no reason to interfere with the award and substitute its view in place of the interpretation accepted by the arbitrator.

In view of what is stated above, the respondent as the contractor had to bear the service tax under clause 9.3 as the liability in connection with the discharge of his obligations under the contract. The appellant could not be faulted for deducting the service tax from the bills of the respondent under clause 9.3, and there was no reason for the High Court to interfere in the view taken by the arbitrator which was based, in any case on a possible interpretation of clause 9.3. The learned single Judge as well as the Division Bench clearly erred in interfering with the award rendered by the arbitrator. Both the judgments will, therefore, have to be set-aside.

RICOH INDIA LIMITED v. COMMISSIONER [DEL]

STA No. 06/2010

Sanjiv Khanna & R.V. Easwar, JJ.

[Decided on 04/05/2012]

Delhi Value Added Tax Act, 2004 - Multi functional printers / machines - Classification-Whether falls under 4% tax schedule-Held, No.

Brief facts

Ricoh India Limited has preferred the present appeal under Section 81 of the Delhi Value Added Tax Act, 2004 (VAT Act, for short) against the order dated 10th March, 2010 passed by the Appellate Tribunal, Value Added Tax, New Delhi (for short, the tribunal) in Appeal No.319/ATVAT/07-08. By the impugned order, the tribunal has affirmed the order dated 13th December, 2007, passed by the Commissioner, Department of Trade and Taxes, disposing of the application for advance ruling filed by the appellant under Section 84 of the VAT Act. The tribunal has upheld the finding of the Commissioner that multi functional printers/copiers/scanners having HSN code No.8471.60.29 and sales of spares and consumables of the above products having HSN code No. 8473.30.99 during the period 1st April, 2005 to 31st March, 2007 are taxable under the residuary head and, therefore, attract value added tax @ 12.5% and do not fall under Entry No. 41A of the third Schedule of the VAT Act and, therefore, are not taxable @ 4%.

Decision : Appeal dismissed.

Reason

The substantial question of law, on which we have heard learned counsel for the parties and which requires adjudication, is as under: - "Whether the multi-functional printers/machines and their spares and consumables, during the period 1st April, 2005 to 31st March, 2007, are taxable under Entry No. 41A of the third schedule of the Delhi Value Added Tax, 2004 or are taxable under the residuary head @ 12.5%?"

There are four schedules to the VAT Act relating to the rate of tax. Schedule I consists of goods which are exempt from tax. There are three entries in the schedule II and the goods mentioned in said entries are taxable @ 1%. Goods mentioned in schedule III are taxable @ 4% (enhanced to 5% after 13.1.2010). There are 12 entries in Schedule IV and the goods mentioned in the said entries are taxable @ 20%. All other goods which are not classified and mentioned in the Schedules I to IV are taxable @ 12.5%. The main and principal dispute is whether the products sold by the appellant are covered by Entry No.41A of the third schedule of the VAT Act or are unclassified goods that attract tax @12.5%. In case the goods in question are covered by Entry No.41A of the third schedule of the VAT Act, the tax payable is @ 4%, otherwise, the tax is payable @ 12.5%.

In order to decide whether or not a multi-functional printer/machine is an input or output unit under Entry 41A of the VAT Act, we feel that the doctrine of dominant or principal purpose has to be applied. Note 1 read with the Rules of interpretation of Central Excise Tariff Act and Explanatory notes of Customs Cooperation Council support our ratio. Accordingly, it has to be determined in each case with reference to machines in question whether its principal or dominant purpose is to work as an input or output unit of the computer i.e. automatic data processing machines whether analogue, hybrid or electronic. While applying the aforesaid test, reference can be made to the rules of interpretation of the provisions of Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 with the explanatory notes updated from time to time published by the Customs Cooperation Council, Brussels. These would include the relevant section and chapter notes. However, reference to the relevant chapter and section note must be made with caution. The chapter/section notes when general can be referred to and applied. But they can also specifically deal with and explain a particular entry, which may not be synonymous/identical or meet the description of the entry in the notification issued under the VAT Act. In such circumstances, to apply the Section or Chapter Notes not relating to general principles of interpretation, would lead to difficulties and incongruities. This caution is necessary in view of the Notes (2) to (4) of the notification, which have been interpreted above. Thus, with regard to the period after 30th November, 2005, the question of law mentioned above is answered holding, inter alia, that the doctrine of dominant purpose of the multi functional machine will determine/decide whether it is an input or output unit of an automatic data processing machine. In case the principal or dominant purpose is to act as input or output unit, then it would qualify and will be covered by Entry 41A at Sr. No.3. However, in case multi-functional machine is a duplicator or a photocopying machine, which incidentally can be used as a printer or a scanner etc., the said machine would not qualify and cannot be treated and regarded as input or output unit of automatic data processing machine. Said machines would not qualify under Entry 41A and will be covered by the residuary tax rate. Question referred to above is accordingly answered.

As noted above, the factual aspects with reference to each machine has to be examined. The appellant had applied for advance adjudication/ruling. They should have produced necessary data/particulars to show and establish that principal/dominant object of the machine was to perform functions of an input or output unit of an automatic data processing machine. The onus was on the appellant to show and establish the principal or dominant purpose as they were the manufacturers or traders of the said machines. Thereafter, it was open to the Revenue to contradict or take a contrary stand, on basis of the relevant material and evidence, if required and necessary take help of expert evidence. In the absence of factual details, we cannot give any firm opinion. We are not inclined to remit the matter, as the appellant had made an application for advance ruling and there have been lapses on their part and more importantly the question and issue can be examined at the stage of assessment/appellate proceedings. The question of law is accordingly answered. The appeal is partly allowed and the order of the tribunal to the extent contrary to the observations made above shall be treated as set aside. In the facts and circumstances of the case, there will be no order as to costs.

was denied to him by the Labour Court even after coming to the conclusion that his services had been illegally terminated by the respondent-management and he had not abandoned his job and only a lump-sum compensation of Rs. 20,000/- was awarded to him. The petitioner-workman felt that he was entitled to be re-instated in service with full back wages and so he knocked the doors of the High Court for getting that relief.

Decision: Petition allowed.

Reason
In the present case it was not the case of the respondent-employer, which is a private company that the appointment of the petitioner was illegal for any reason or that there was no requirement of attendants any more. It was also not its case that the petitioner was employed on temporary basis or as a daily wager, which was the position in most of the cases where the Supreme Court had awarded compensation only in lieu of the relief of re-instatement and back wages. The petitioner-workman had put in more than three years of service at the time of illegal termination of his services and he would have continued to serve for more period as the employer has been claiming that it never intended to terminate his services and he himself had abandoned his job, which defence, of course, has not been accepted by the Labour Court. During the course of hearing of this matter the learned counsel for the respondent-management had submitted that the respondent firm has been closed down but this was not the defence plea either before the Labour Court or in this writ petition and so it cannot be entertained, much less accepted for denying the relief of re-instatement to the petitioner-workman. In its counter affidavit the respondent had simply pleaded that it will not be in its interest to re-instate the petitioner-workman but no justification was given for such a plea. In one decision of this Court in Jaipal Sharma v. P.O., Labour Court & Anr (2002) 95 FLR 1204, this Court while reversing the decision of the Labour Court in not giving the relief of re-instatement and back wages to the workman involved in that case without giving any reasons for denying him those reliefs had granted the relief of re-instatement and back wages to the workman.

For all these reasons, the award of the Labour Court in the present case to the extent it has declined the reliefs of re-instatement and back wages is not sustainable at all. It is a case of arbitrary exercise of discretion by the Labour Court. So, this writ petition succeeds and the petitioner-workman is granted the relief of re-instatement and back wages to the workman.

Brief facts
By way of this writ petition the petitioner-workman, who was employed as an attendant with the respondent Company, had challenged the award dated 04-10-06 in ID Case No. 137/1996 whereby the relief of re-instatement in service with back wages.
Section 10 of the Industrial Disputes Act read with Order 9 Rule 13 Civil Procedure Code - Improper application moved to set aside an ex-parte award - Tribunal rejected the application—whether correct—Held, Yes.

Brief facts
This writ petition has been filed by the petitioner-management for setting aside the order passed by the Industrial Tribunal whereby the application filed by it for setting aside of the ex-parte Award dated 16.03.2004 whereby the workmen concerned awarded the relief of payment of officiating allowance for the period they were asked by their employer, the petitioner herein, to perform the duties of higher posts without their having been promoted to those posts, has been rejected. The petitioner has also challenged the Award.

Decision: Petition dismissed.

Reason
The ex-parte Award came to be passed by the Industrial Tribunal upon receipt of a Reference from the appropriate Government under Section 10 of the Industrial Disputes Act in respect of the demand of some of the workers employed at Janpath Hotel for regular pay scales in respect of the posts held by them. The statement of claim was filed on behalf of the workmen wherein they had claimed that even though they were performing the duties of higher posts but they were not getting the pay scales attached to those posts and not even getting officiating allowance by the management for taking work from them meant for higher posts.

The petitioner management did not contest the claim of the workmen by not entering appearance before the Industrial Tribunal and consequently it was ordered to be proceeded against ex-parte. After recording ex-parte evidence of the workmen the Industrial Tribunal passed an Award in favour of the workmen and the relief given to them.

The petitioner management subsequently filed an application for setting aside of the afore-said ex-parte Award on 8th May, 2004 giving reasons for its non-appearance during the trial. The workmen opposed that application on the ground of delay and that it was not signed by the representative of the management.

Despite several opportunities granted to the management. The management has not taken any action to correct the mistake. They have not filed any new application signed by the departmental representative or by the authorized representative on whose prayer or application the relief sought for can be granted or even considered.

After giving my thoughtful consideration to the rival submissions of the parties I see no merit in this writ petition and the same is liable to be dismissed for the reason that the impugned order dated 16th March, 2004 shows that the person who had moved the application under Order IX Rule 13 CPC had failed to show that he had been authorized by the petitioner management to move that application. In this writ petition also nothing has been claimed as to who was that person by the name of Mr. S.N. Khanna who had moved that application. Thus, it cannot be accepted that the application under Order IX Rule 13 CPC had been rejected on hyper-technical ground justifying interference by this Court in exercise of its writ jurisdiction.

NARNE CONSTRUCTION PVT LTD v. UNION OF INDIA & ORS [SC]

Civil Appeal Nos. 4432-4450 of 2012 (Arising out of S.L.P. (C) Nos.3499-3517 of 2011)

T.S. Thakur & Gyan Sudha Mishra, JJ.

[Decided on 10/05/2012]

Consumer Protection Act, 1986 - Section 2(1) (a)-Housing construction-Supreme Court reiterates and reaffirms the law.

The short question that falls for determination in these appeals by special leave is whether the appellant-company was, in the facts and circumstances of the case, offering any 'service' to the respondents within the meaning of the Consumer Protection Act, 1986 so as to make it amenable to the jurisdiction of the fora established under the said Act. Relying upon the decision of this Court in Lucknow
Development Authority v. M.K. Gupta (1994) 1 SCC 243, the High Court has answered the question in the affirmative and held that the respondents were 'consumers' and the appellant was a 'service' provider within the meaning of the Act aforementioned, hence amenable to the jurisdiction of the fora under the said Act.

Decision: Appeal dismissed.

Reason

In the context of the housing construction and building activities carried on by a private or statutory body and whether such activity tantamounts to service within the meaning of clause (o) of Section 2(1) of the Act, the Court observed:

"As pointed out earlier the entire purpose of widening the definition is to include in it not only day to day buying and selling activity undertaken by a common man but even such activities which are otherwise not commercial in nature yet they partake of a character in which some benefit is conferred on the consumer. Construction of a house or flat is for the benefit of person for whom it is constructed. He may do it himself or hire services of a builder or contractor. The latter being for consideration is service as defined in the Act. Similarly when a statutory authority develops land or allots a site or constructs a house for the benefit of common man it is as much service as by a builder or contractor. The one is contractual service and other statutory service. If the service is defective or it is not what was represented then it would be unfair trade practice as defined in the Act. Any defect in construction activity would be denial of comfort and service to a consumer. When possession of property is not delivered within stipulated period the delay so caused is denial of service. Such disputes or claims are not in respect of Immovable property as argued but deficiency in rendering of service of particular standard, quality or grade. Such deficiencies or omissions are defined in Sub-clause (ii) of Clause (r) of Section 2 as unfair trade practice. If a builder of a house uses substandard material in construction of a building or makes false or misleading representation about the condition of the house then it is denial of the facility or benefit of which a consumer is entitled to claim under the Act. When the contractor or builder undertakes to erect a house or flat then it is inherent in it that he shall perform his obligation as agreed to. A flat with a leaking roof, or cracking wall or substandard floor is denial of service. Similarly when a statutory authority undertakes to develop land and frame housing scheme, it, while performing statutory duty renders service to the society in general and individual in particular."

This Court further held that when a person applies for allotment of building site or for a flat constructed by development authority and enters into an agreement with the developer or a contractor, the nature of the transaction is covered by the expression 'service' of any description. The housing construction or building activity carried on by a private or statutory body was, therefore, held to be 'service' within the meaning of clause (o) of Section 2(1) of the Act as it stood prior to the inclusion of the expression 'housing construction' in the definition of 'service' by Ordinance No.24 of 1993.

In the light of the above pronouncement of this Court the High Court was perfectly justified in holding that the activities of the appellant-company in the present case involving offer of plots for sale to its customers/members with an assurance of development of infrastructure/amenities, lay-out approvals etc. was a 'service' within the meaning of clause (o) of Section 2(1) of the Act and would, therefore, be amenable to the jurisdiction of the fora established under the statute. Having regard to the nature of the transaction between the appellant-company and its customers which involved much more than a simple transfer of a piece of immovable property it is clear that the same constituted 'service' within the meaning of the Act.

Suffice it to say that the legal position on the subject is fairly well-settled by the pronouncements of this Court and do not require any reiteration. The High Court has correctly noticed the said pronouncements and applied them to the facts of the case at hand leaving no room for us to interfere with the answer given by it to the solitary question raised by the appellant-company.

Study Circle Meeting on Related Party Transactions & Legal Issues

On 20.4.2012 Gurgaon Chapter of NIRC of the ICSI organized a Study Circle Meeting on Related Party Transactions & Legal Issues. The meeting was addressed by CS I.C. Kamboj, Sr. GM & Company Secretary, Hero Motocorp Ltd. The speaker informed the members that a related party transaction is a transfer of resources, services or obligations between a reporting entity and a related party, regardless of whether a price is charged. Related party relationships are a normal feature of commerce and business. For example, entities frequently carry on parts of their activities through subsidiaries, joint ventures and associates. In those circumstances, the entity has the ability to affect the financial and operating policies of the investee through the presence of control, joint control or significant influence. Close members of the family of a person are the persons specified within the meaning of ‘relative’ under the Companies Act, 1956 and that person’s domestic partner, children of that person’s domestic partner and dependents of that person’s domestic partner. An awareness of various provisions is very much required so as to take adequate care while entering into related party transaction and disclosing the same in the Financial Statements. In a corporate world, the real owners are different from the management. So there is possibility that, management by using their powers may cheat the investors. To have control on all these activities the Companies Act imposes certain conditions through various sections, when a company entering into any transaction in which directors are interested. E.g. section 297 of the Companies Act, 1956 requires Board approval for entering into any contract or arrangement with the related parties. However this section will cover only transactions relating to sale, purchase or supply of any goods, materials and services or for underwriting the subscription of any shares in, or debentures of, the company. Further, there is a requirement to take Central Government approval if the company has more than one crore paid up capital. Clarifying certain definitions, he further explained that compensation includes all employee benefits (as defined in Ind AS 19 Employee Benefits) including employee benefits to which Ind AS 102 Share-based Payments applies. Employee benefits are all forms of consideration paid, payable or provided by the entity, or on behalf of the entity, in exchange for services rendered to the entity. It also includes such consideration paid on behalf of a parent of the entity in respect of the entity. Section 297 of the Companies Act, 1956, describes the transaction with certain persons as related party transaction. Related party relationship could have an effect on the profit or loss and financial position of an entity. Related parties may enter into transactions that unrelated parties would not. For example, an entity that sells goods to its parent at cost might not sell on those terms to another customer. Also, transactions between related parties may not be made at the same amounts as between unrelated parties.

He stated that professionals should probably research and study the market, the effect of certain stocks on the same and focus more on their intangible effects. There after Manjit Singh in his address interspersed with statistics and facts gave a demographic perspective on a macro level of the topic. He gave a brief overview of the growth of the capital markets from the 1970’s to date. He also stated that though earlier SEBI used to look at SEC and other regulators on what to do, it has now emerged as the leader regulator which other regulators are looking to for ideas, reforms and new measures of regulation. He enumerated some of the factors that have been the drivers of growth in the capital market as economic growth; Indian habit of saving; increasing urbanisation, education, prosperity, increased foreign investment, corporate transparency and corporate governance. He emphasised on the importance of Good Corporate Governance as it contribute to sustainable corporates by enhancing the performance of the companies, thereby increasing their access to outside capital by reducing the risk on investment and increasing investor confidence. He further highlighted the role of professionals especially Company Secretaries in ensuring implementation of Good Corporate Governance in substance and not merely in form.

Bhaskar Bhatt in his key-note address had a very different take on the theme. He commenced his address by asking the audience to focus not merely on finance when talking about capital but also focus on all important aspects of human capital as they both go hand-in-hand, as people run companies and not processes and systems. He accentuated the need for all concerned to think of the larger purpose so that the intellectualism in debates could reduce and leading to more meaning to what we do about Governance, organising markets, transparency etc. Giving the analogy of IPL and how it has changed the game and management of the game of cricket Bhat called for attention to the fact that the markets valued talent and is willing to pay the right price for the talent and that opening up of the market and increasing transparency leads to creation of more opportunities.

He walked the audience through various stages of growth of the Capital market through the ages, where now it has moved to a high level of sophistication. He however, cautioned that though sophistication in the markets is a good thing and is very much required it has to be understood by the participants in the capital market if it is to be beneficial.

Talking about the role of professionals in the growth of the capital market he said that the main challenge for them would be to increase the number of investors in the capital markets which is a mere 2% of the entire population, by creating an atmosphere to increase the confidence of the investors in corporates and the capital markets thereby leading to inclusive growth which will in turn enhance transparency and good governance.

S. Raman, the Chief Guest in his inaugural address focused on the importance of Corporate Governance and stated that good corporate governance is consistent action/behaviour over many year and commands confidence, respect and good reputation across all stakeholders.

He emphasised on the need to not only build one’s reputation but also take the steps to maintain the same as the consequences of losing one’s reputation could prove very costly for corporates and could take years and years to earn back/or repair. The role of professionals he added was to ensure that the corporates learn from the mistakes of others instead of repeating them and also in relooking at the existing laws/regulatory mechanism and giving suggestions in improving the same to create a better and growing market and subsequently the economy.
