He advised that , each of the students should consider investing in oneself so as to witness the transformation which will happen in each one.

He said that “before starting investing in oneself , a SAP-Self Awareness Program to identify traits, angularities, sweet-spots, strengths etc should be undertaken . This investment could be anything, it may be in the form of additional languages, grooming skills, dramatics, music and many more because as one grows in life, the need to keep reinventing oneself is far more paramount.”

President, Council of the ICSI said that , “with this investment which is essentially long term one will gain market appreciation over time. Like companies which practise good governance gain in their value overtime and provide long-term gains in the form of dividends and price-appreciation, you too govern yourself well. For that remember one thing-you will be known in the society by what you are as a person and what you can deliver and this calls for strict adherence to ethical values”. He also added that ,”The need to remain credible is the most critical challenge today as your words hold out for you, your employers, your clients etc. Being credible is nothing else but doing what you say and saying what you do. The ability to distinguish between right and wrong has always been the most challenging assignment in life which is never taught in the classrooms”.

CS Anil Murarka , Council Member, ICSI in his address said that profession of Company Secretary is achieving new heights. He said That the world is become globalised, there is increased regulation and newer process are helping in the growth of CS profession. CS Ashok Pareek, Council Member, ICSI in his welcome address advised the students that they should take care of performance in whatever they do and the wealth would take care of itself. He reiterated the fact that, “the path to success is through hard work and perseverance and not through accumulation of wealth. He also stated that , “There are instances of overnight success stories, which ultimately doomed as the persons involved chased the wealth and lost track of their real success. “To Excel in the right sense is chasing your professional / personal goals and letting the results take care of themselves, making the process of achievement supreme and making the result irrelevant. He advised the students to perfect the process of performance and not to allow the pressure of the result to choke your performance”.

Attitude determines the lifestyle of a person and it develops when perception is followed by projection, planning and actioning. Our attitude towards life can have a significant positive impact on shaping our quality of life”. He also expressed that , “a positive (creative) attitude on the other hand, is open, passionate, focused, and has many other attributes that leads you in the direction of creative success. A positive and proactive attitude always leads to success. It is thus, important to develop a positive attitude.. He emphasized that clearly defined goals, positive attitude and faith in your capabilities, supported by an untiring commitment and toil could create wonders”
