A new era for the Company law related litigations in India has opened with the constitution of the National Company Law Tribunal (NCLT) and the National Company Law Appellate Tribunal (NCLAT) with effect from 1st June, 2016. The constitution of the NCLT as a single forum to deal with Company Law matters is a welcome move to various stakeholders as it aims at providing a speedy and efficient disposal of the matters. However, the NCLT would expand to its full capacity only over a period of time. The matters such as amalgamations, capital reductions, winding up, etc. under the Companies Act, 2013 Act have not yet been notified and would continue to be within the purview of the High Court. Similarly, now only the fines can be compounded by NCLT unlike earlier Company Law Board (CLB) where imprisonment or fines could be dealt with.

The constitution of NCLT is going to throw challenges in the manner of dealing with the cases, since the cases that are being dealt with CLB, High Court and BIFR would eventually be transferred to NCLT, besides certain new powers that are conferred on NCLT under Companies Act, 2013. It not only widens the scope of opportunities for the professionals to deal with the cases before NCLT, interpretation of legislative and procedural aspects, regulatory harmonisation but also for others who wish to understand and explore the new emerging opportunities in the days ahead and prepare themselves to undertake new assignments.

Keeping the need of the hour and to ensure the less cumbersome transition, PHD Chamber of Commerce and Industry is organizing a Half day Seminar on “National Company Law Tribunal – Challenges & The Way Forward Implications”. The details of the Seminar are as follow:
