After the proposed virtual classroom facility under e-learning portal starts, students will be able to interact live with the faculty. This will take the CS course studies virtually into the space age.

Undergoing e-learning is in addition and not in substitution to compulsory postal tuition. E-learning is designed to provide a virtual contact between the teacher and the taught. Students intended to join e-learning are therefore, required to pay additional fees as determined by the Institute from time to time.

To access the E-learning Portal of ICSI the candidates may log on to http://elearning.icsi.edu

A nominal annual fee of Rs 450/- (Rupees Four hundred and fifty only) plus taxes for first year has to be paid for WBT (Web Based Self Paced Learning).

 The charges for subsequent years are listed on http://elearning.icsi.edu. The charges are in addition to the Registration fees.
Dear Students,

Energy and enthusiasm are two elements peculiar to youth and students. I am saying that because amateurs built the ark and professionals built the Titanic. You being prospective professionals can create wonders, in your professional career by sheer enthusiasm and energy. What is however required is proper planning and actioning. As the examinations are nearing I am sure, most of you would be busy revising your notes. No doubt exams bring in for some, stress and anxiety. Let me share with you some research findings which show that anxiety levels rise among the students to varying degrees depending upon the individual’s approach to exam related stress.

Why does this happen? Because, generally we are in the habit of postponing the things, be it studies or some other important things. We delay them to the extent they become urgent and this dilatory attitude is most often than not the major cause of exam related stress among students. Remember, “We all have ability. The difference is how we use it.” So what is important is to channelise your energies in a planned manner.

Whatever may be the reason for procrastinating, you need to identify and promptly take the steps necessary to control the situation. Generally, reasons for procrastinating among students, may be waiting for the right mood, the right time and the like. Other not so common reasons may be lack of clear goals, underestimating the efforts and time required to accomplish the task, tasks being ambiguous, lack of enthusiasm to take up the task, etc. In this context, Bernard Meltzer once said that “Hard work is often the easy work you did not do at the proper time.”

Enthusiasm is a major driving force that helps in overcoming dilatory attitude. It propels your mind towards accomplishing the goal. It makes the treading obstacle free. Therefore, my advise to all of you is, never be afraid in doing something new. It is high time for you not to loose your tempo. Right now your goal should be to excel the examinations. Work towards achieving this goal in a planned and organised manner, and never ever let your enthusiasm belie you. So, commit yourself to maintaining enthusiasm, and I am sure the success would enlighten you.

The Institute continues to constantly endeavour to provide the best efficient services to all its students and members located throughout the world. With this view the following information has been provided to guide you further during the course of your studies.

C.S. FOUNDATION COURSE BULLETIN NOVEMBER - DECEMBER - 2008

A nation’s infrastructure development plays a significant role in economic growth. With the rapid growth of the economy in recent years, the importance and the urgency of removing infrastructure constraints have increased. Traditionally, power, railways, roads, ports, airports and telecommunications were the exclusive domain of the government. Policy has changed gradually over the past two decades under the pressure of rising gaps between demand and supply of infrastructure and deteriorating quality of assets. Government has made an effort to facilitate the entry of private enterprise into this sector through changes in the legal framework. A role for private sector participation has also been facilitated by technological change that allow unbundling of infrastructure, so that the public and the private sectors can take up the components most suited to their capacities. Government continues to invest significant sums in areas where private participation is minimal or not forthcoming. It will continue to play a lead role in infrastructure development during the Eleventh Plan.

The public good character of parts of the infrastructure makes it necessary to adopt an eclectic approach to the participation of the public and private sectors. Roads are the classic ‘public good’ on account of non-rivalness and non-excludability in use. However, as demand expands, and an inter city road becomes a high density highway, pricing and exclusion can become economically feasible thus changing the character of the service from ‘public good’ to ‘private good’. Many types of infrastructure therefore have a mix of public good and private good character, with the mix generally weighted towards the former in rural and remote areas and towards the latter in the large towns and metro areas.

There is also a need to distinguish between physical infrastructure and infrastructure services. Most infrastructure services are non-tradable in nature. For these reasons, the stock of infrastructure services may not be readily augmented through imports as in the case of other goods and services. Many infrastructure facilities have a significant component characterized by declining costs, leading to a “natural monopoly” situation. Though the extent of such monopoly may vary, such situations usually warrant the regulation of the pricing of such services. In essence, therefore, the public and private good characteristics of infrastructure may vary depending on various factors that include the size of investment, geographical location, demand and supply conditions, the stage of development and technological factors. There is a consensus that well designed infrastructure projects with good implementation can yield positive externalities and spin-offs for other sectors. Infrastructure also has backward and forward linkages with the rest of the economy.

The progress made in the growth of power, transport, communication and urban infrastructure in India during 2007-08 with a focus on the policy initiatives taken towards capacity augmentation through public and private investment and through public-private partnerships and on the challenges that lie ahead in developing physical infrastructure.

Review of 2007-08

The overall performance of the infrastructure during April-December 2007-08 presents a somewhat subdued picture compared to the corresponding period of last year. Growth in electricity generation has decelerated to 6.6 per cent from 7.5 per cent in the corresponding period in 2006-07. The transport sector presents a mixed picture, with a deceleration in the growth of railway traffic and an acceleration in the growth of traffic through ports and in air cargo. The highly competitive rail sector has maintained its phenomenal growth rates for addition of new connections. The production of universal intermediates like steel, cement and petroleum showed a distinctly weaker performance during April-December 2007-08 as compared to the corresponding period of the previous year while the performance of coal shows a marginal improvement (see Table).

In the prevailing trend of global recession and with the current GDP growth of around 7%, in which there is contribution of nearly 51% from services and 16% from manufacturing sector there is a need for proper alignment of resources. To sustain this growth India needs to develop sound infrastructure so that the right input of skilled, qualified and socially contented labor; visible and reliable supply chains; prompt and accurate information for decision making; efficient process and updated technology can be given to the operations of manufacturing and services.

ENGLISH AND BUSINESS COMMUNICATION

UK VERSUS USA ENGLISH

English language is used all over the world, but its usage differs from country to country. In written English there are practically no differences between British and American language. However, in spoken English the differences become clear through the following:

1) Accent
2) Grammar usage
3) Pronunciation difference
4) Spelling difference
5) Vocabulary difference

1) Accent: Accent is an imprecise word. It refers to the differences we notice in the way each of us speaks. We usually think accent refers to just the pronunciation differences. However, grammatical differences may also contribute to the overall impression of a person’s accent.

Example: (US) He just went home
(UK) He’s just gone home.

2) Grammar usage: In American English the simple past is often preferred whereas in Britain the present perfect is used.

Example: (US) He just went home
(UK) He’s just gone home.

3) Pronunciation difference: The differences in pronunciation between Britain and America can only be generalized as there are many different regional accents in both countries.

1 Compiled by V P Sharma, Joint Director, The ICSI
2 Prepared & compiled by Shruti Bansal, Assistant Education Officer, The ICSI
ACADEMIC GUIDANCE

4) Spelling difference: Some of the main differences between standard British and American English are:

Examples:
- In American English final 't' is not usually doubled if it is not stressed.
  - (US) traveler, leveling
  - (UK) traveller, leveling
- Some words end in 'ter' in American English and 'tre' in British English.
  - (US) theater, center, meter
  - (UK) theatre, centre, metre
- Some words end in 'or' in American English and 'our' in British English.
  - (US) labor, honor, color
  - (UK) labour, honour, colour

5) Vocabulary difference: These are the words which have different meanings in America and Britain.

Examples: Word- Meaning
- Homely - Ugly (US)
  - Pleasant (UK)
- Public School - State school (US)
  - Private school (UK)
- Mail - Send a letter (US)
  - Letters received (UK)
- Momentarily - In a moment (US)
  - For a moment (UK)
- Vest - Garment worn over a shirt (US)
  - Garment worn under a shirt (UK)
- Wash up - Wash hands and face (US)
  - Wash dishes after a meal (UK)

ELEMENTS OF BUSINESS LAWS AND MANAGEMENT

TIPS FOR INCREASING SELF CONFIDENCE

Confidence is the trust or faith on one’s ability to do something. It is a kind of mental image about one’s self. Confidence can be increased by following some easy and simple tips. They are listed below:

1) Positive thinking: Start your day with positive thinking. Set some mantras or read some good thought of the day. When you get up in the morning just try saying something positive to yourself, like 'I am intelligent' or 'I will have a good day'. Follow it the whole day.

2) Spend time with confident people: Spend time with people who are confident. Pick up things and analyze their behavior. Start behaving like them. Just keep pretending like them for some time and you will notice that you have actually become confident and behaving like them. Just keep pretending like them for some time and you will notice that you have actually become confident and behaving like them. To be confident, you need to focus on your body language also. Try walking smartly, straight with your shoulders-up, and with a smile and then see your confidence soaring.

3) Search for a mentor: Get yourself a teacher, someone who has, what you are trying to achieve. Your mentor will be your guide and will tell you where you go wrong. Thus he will help you succeed more quickly.

4) Know yourself: Try to know your true self. Think of things you are good at. Enhance and polish those attributes. Once you are sure that you can do certain things very well, focus on them.

5) Tell others about your achievements: Know your achievements and let others know your achievements. Be proud of your achievements. Once people know your achievements, you will feel more confident.

6) Work on your body language: By now you must have noticed that confident people have a very erect, straight posture. They are usually very smart and carry themselves well. To be confident, you need to focus on your body language also. Try walking smartly, straight with your shoulders-up, and with a smile and then see your confidence soaring.

7) Focus on self-comparison: Assess yourself with your previous achievements/results. There is nothing as good as comparison with one’s own self. Thus, compare yourself with your earlier results. Look at others but to learn and not to compare and compete.

Follow these simple steps and see your confidence rising slowly and gradually. Think positive, trust yourself and your capabilities and don’t attribute your success to anything except your hard work. Self confidence can thus be achieved with a little bit of commitment, conviction, positive attitude and trust on one’s self.
