PART – A

1. (a) Ebbers built WorldCom from a small telecommunications company into a global giant. It all started back in 1984, when he invested in a local long-distance phone company. Soon he was invited to manage it. He made it grow through a series of aggressive, even audacious mergers. Eventually, it became a publicly traded corporation with annual revenues of $39 billion. As the company grew, so did Ebbers's wealth, but his extravagant spending forced him to use all of his WorldCom stock as collateral for bank loans to pay his debts. If its price fell too far, he would be bankrupt. About this time in 1990s, the dot-com investment bubble burst. WorldCom's revenue declined and expenses for its world-spanning fibre optic network rose more than anticipated. According to later investigations, in 2000, Ebbers gave the first in a string of instructions to his Chief Financial Officer to report false revenues and use accounting tricks to disguise rising expenses. The share prices held. However, internal auditors discovered the deceit and reported it to the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). The agency started an investigation. WorldCom's Board of directors forced Ebbers to resign. Soon the truth came out and WorldCom shares lost 90% of their value. In 2002, WorldCom set a record in failure, breaking Enron's previous total for the largest bankruptcy in American history. Although the company ultimately survived, 17,000 workers lost their jobs and investors lost billions.

The purpose of Corporate Governance is to improve governance in the corporate but the story of WorldCom presented above puts a question mark on the sanctity of Corporate Governance.

Analyse the failure of Corporate Governance and give recommendations to keep future company operations in order and avoid others from following the footsteps of Ebbers even though he was forced by the Board of directors to resign.
